LEGATIONS BESIEGED

Pekin Legations Beset and the Defenders' Provisions Are Nearly Exhausted.

FUGITIVES AT CHE FOO

List of American Missionaries Who Have Arrived There From Interior.

Washington, July 2.—The navy department has received the following telegram from Admiral Kempf, without date:

"The Foo-Secretary of Navy, Washington. Rumor from Peking reports legations are besieged; provisions nearly exhausted; situation desperate. German minister going to Tsung Li Yamen murdered by Chinese soldiers. American, Italian, Dutch legations burned. Twenty thousand Chinese soldiers inside; 30,000 outside Peking. 2000 reported bound for Tien Tsin; still fighting at Tien Tsin. Communication to Tien Tsin by rail and river insecure. KEMPFF."

New York, July 2.—A dispatch to the Herald from Che Foo says: "Unrest is spreading, and the missionaries are making their way to the coast from all the northern provinces. A steamer sent by the American and other consuls at Che Foo arrived here Saturday with 75 missionaries, comprising 35 Americans, 20 English, 10 Canadians and 1 Chinese."

The names of the Americans follows: Dr. Crawford and wife; Rev. Mr. Bawse, wife and family; Rev. Mr. Dawes, wife and family; Rev. Mr. Partch, wife and family; Miss Burnham, M.D.; Rev. Mr. Blackstock and wife; Rev. Mr. Hudson, wife and family; Rev. Mr. Fitch, wife and family; Dr. Faerless and three children; Miss Edna, Fuchs, M.D.; Margaret Chaffin. All these are from Shan Tung and Honan.

Others are coming to the coast, for whom other steamers have been sent. The American consul at Che Foo and the commander of the American gunboat, Nashville, urge American citizens to seize the present opportunity to leave Che Foo on merchant ships, and the Japanese consuls have offered Japanese transports to convey Americans to Japan.

At Wei Hsin, the American Presbyterian and other missionaries were forced to leave on June 25, but the missionaries escaped.

British refugees arriving at Che Foo are being housed in the British legation, and the British first-class cruiser Terrible.

PEKIN REPORTED ENTERED.

Shanghai Reports the Internationals In the Capital.

London, July 2.—Among the sensational batch of telegrams from the far East, most of which present features suggesting reserve in their acceptance, the most important is a statement that a body of international troops has forced its way into Peking, after beating a combination of imperial troops and Boxers.

Though this emanates from Shanghai and contains many errors, the optimistic find in it some measure of support for the story in a telegram from Yung Lu, the Chinese commander-in-chief, who, apparently, is also a member of the council of state and president of the department of finance, in which he refers to the international forces entering Peking.

Some circumstantiality appears to attach to the report from the statement that the international troops found the Chinese field artillery vastly superior to their own, but badly handled. Whether the international forces have arrived at Peking or not, the message from Yung Lu describing the critical situation at Peking and urging the instant advance of the foreign troops shows that at least one faction is ready to welcome them and join in opposing Prince Tuan's foreign agitation. The latter is said to have accomplished a revolution at the palace by placing his own son (the half-appeared) on the throne, after seizing or driving out the dowager empress and emperor. Europe hopes to derive advantage from these internal complications.

Though practically all the news tends to establish the accuracy of the dispatches of Von Ketteler's murder, some people find ray of hope in the fact that Sir Robert Hart, the inspector general of customs, telegraphing on the subject of the situation of the legation, after the alleged date of the murder, did not mention it.

ON TO THE CAPITAL.

All Envoys Contended on Relieving Foreigners in Peking.

New York, July 2.—A dispatch to the Herald from Che Foo says: "All thoughts and energies of the naval and military commanders at Taku are now concentrated on the relief of the foreigners in Peking, who have been shut off from the outside world since June 2."

The allied forces now in Taku and Tien Tsin are awaiting reinforcements before moving on Peking, as it is estimated that 50,000 troops are required. The Tsung Li Yamen, on June 19, ordered the ministers to leave Peking next day. They refused to go, and threw the responsibility for their safety on the Tsung Li Yamen.

It is believed that the powers will threaten to demolish the imperial tombs if injury but in all probability will follow the lead of New York state if it agrees upon a suitable man. Senator Money, of Mississippi, was among the early arrivals today. He will probably represent his state in the convention.

"I am for the reaffirmation of the Chicago platform," he said. "I am for the denunciation of imperialism, for the gold standard law, and for the severest condemnation of the rascality in Cuba. I want an especially strong declaration on imperialism."

force were fearfully mutilated. The British dispatch vessel Alacrity arrived at Che Foo this morning. She brings seventeen wounded from Wei Hai Wei.

There was an incident here on Thursday evening over cooie troubles. All the men of the naval brigade at Taku have been recalled to their ships and replaced by troops.

FOREIGN FORCE AT TAKU.

Nearly Fifteen Thousand Troops Are Now Landed.

New York, July 2.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says: "Official advices given out by the admiralty show that a foreign force of 14,200 officers and men has landed at Taku and that the river route has been opened to Tien Tsin, where Admiral Seymour still remains as commander of the foreign contingent."

This force has been capturing arsenals, blowing up forts and shelling Chinese positions near Peking. It is plain that their advance will increase the dangers of the legations and enkindle revolt in middle and Southern China.

The anomalies of the situation are so numerous that there is a growing feeling among well-informed men that there will be some diplomatic move by which occupation of the capital may be prevented. A prominent member of parliament in London, however, believes that will be brought about after a strong demonstration of military force at Tien Tsin and Taku, and that the partition of China will be deferred. While Russia covets Manchuria, she is not prepared to assume the responsibility of governing Northern China and is unwilling to sanction the occupation of two or three provinces in addition.

Corea, while France wishes the annexation of Yun Nan to Tonquin and Szechuan, England is not ready to assume the responsibility for the administration of the populous Yangtze valley.

The crisis has come prematurely, and for this reason some of the most sagacious and public men believe that there will be some temporary adjustment, with the consent of Russia, England and the United States, and that the military preparations now in progress with a policy of temporary expedients and civil and public men assuming that the China question will be speedily settled do not explain what he who with Japan, whose troops now on the ground are inferior in strength only to those of Russia.

There is a rumour of excitement in Canton and other cities of the empire, and there is the usual shuffling and shuffling of the cards respecting the legations. There is little trustworthy information, and there are many signs of indifference. Englishmen are not eager for a second campaign this year with an enemy whose Lord Salisbury to arrange a settlement, some kind of compromise and the empress if a compromise be practicable.

KILLING OF VON KETTELER.

German Minister Murdered by Chinese Soldiers and Boxers.

London, July 2.—Official dispatches received by the consular body at Shanghai, July 1, says, confirm in the fullest manner the report of the German minister, on June 18. The ambassador was riding on Legation street, when he was killed by Chinese troops and Boxers, dragged from his horse and killed. His body was hacked to pieces with swords and spears. The legation and six surrounding buildings were burned, and a number of servants of the legations were killed and their bodies thrown into the flames. Official confirmation of this has created the utmost consternation among the consular corps, the powers, who expressed fears that war with Peking would be declared against the legations.

The consuls of the legations are left alive in the capital. There were 100 foreigners connected with the legations, fifty in the custom house, English and American. The number of the international forces of 150, and nearly 500 legation guards.

Gen. Yuan Shihkan, commanding the international troops in China, has notified the German government of Kiao-Cau to the effect that the German government is to be placed under the protection of the German government. The German government is to be placed under the protection of the German government. The German government is to be placed under the protection of the German government.

A correspondent in Shanghai learns from official sources that the Chinese are having trouble between Shanghai and the Kiang-Nan arsenal. Agents of the Boxers are busy at Shanghai provoking the hatred of the foreigners.

HARRY BROMAN KILLED.

One of Duluth's Boys Falls Fighting In China.

Kempff Fully Confirms Report of Von Ketteler's Murder.

Washington, July 2.—Cable advices from Admiral Kempf fully confirm the report of the murder of Von Ketteler, the German minister at

CROWDS POUR IN

Contingents Are Arriving In Kansas City By Every Train.

TALK OF DELEGATES

They Discuss the Platform and the Question of Bryan's Mate.

Kansas City, July 2.—The majority of the members of the Nebraska delegation is expected by afternoon. They came prepared to make a strong fight, if necessary, for the insertion in the platform of a plank declaring in the most specific terms for 16 to 1. W. H. Thompson, of Grand Island, a delegate-at-large and a close friend of Mr. Bryan, said:

"We have held no meeting of the delegation as yet, and I cannot say what their individual opinions may be, but I rather think," he added, with a smile, "that there is not much doubt of what they think. Speaking for myself, I do not think that good a mere reaffirmation of a plank in a former platform can do. People are not going to hunt up a copy of the Chicago platform to read that it is we reaffirm. If the convention is going to declare for 16 to 1, there is only one way to make it a plank in the platform, and that is to insert a plank in the platform which shall say what is meant. A reaffirmation may be good enough in its way, but its way is not a very good way."

Concerning the vice presidency, Mr. Thompson said that the Nebraska delegation was somewhat a team, and decided positively that it had received an intimation from Mr. Bryan of his personal choice of a candidate.

"I want the man that will poll the most votes," said Mr. Thompson, "and have not been on the ground long enough to form any idea of who that man is. Speaking generally, however, I will say that if the state of New York has a man who is a good deal against whom there is no objection on personal grounds, that man will be suitable. The man that is a good deal against whom there is no objection on personal grounds, that man will be suitable. The man that is a good deal against whom there is no objection on personal grounds, that man will be suitable."

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

Sub-Committees to Consider Resolutions Are Appointed.

Kansas City, July 2.—The Democratic national committee was called to meet at the Kansas City Club building at 10 o'clock today, but the committee members were slow in gathering, and the meeting did not begin for almost an hour after that time. The committee heard the report of the sub-committee which had in charge the preparation of the convention hall, and then took up other matters requiring its attention.

A decision was reported to have been reached on the various contests over seats heard by sub-committees and not by the committee as a whole. It was understood that Hon. George Fred Williams will be chairman of the committee to consider the Montana contest between the Clark and Daly factions.

The committee did not manifest a disposition to accept without question the decision of the sub-committee to refer the contest to a sub-committee for hearing, and especial objection was made to the disposition of the Montana controversy. A motion was made to temporarily set the Clark delegation until the committee on credentials could take up the case. The motion was unanimously voted down. After a brief debate, the sub-committee's recommendation was accepted and Chairman Jones was authorized to name the members of the various subordinate committees.

During the discussion Mr. Campbell, of New York, indicated a preference for the Clark delegation, and Mr. Clayton, of Alabama, for the Daly faction. The sub-committees appointed are as follows: On Montana—Williams (Mass.), Campbell (N. Y.), Clayton (Ala.), Ferguson (N. M.), Wilson (Cal.) On District of Columbia—Woods (Conn.), Norris, Paul (N. J.), Cunniff (Wis.), Obermyer (Ind.) On Oklahoma—Senator Kenny (Del.), Johnson (Ohio), Woods (S. D.), Gordon (Me.), O'Brien (Ill.) On Indiana territory—Daniels (N. C.), McGraw (W. Va.), Gahan (Ill.), Ainslie (Idaho), and Head (Tenn.)

Of the Montana sub-committee, Messrs. Williams and Clayton are said to be favorable to the Daly delegates, and Messrs. Campbell and Ferguson to the Clark people. Mr. Wilson's position is not defined.

When the sub-committees were announced, the committee took up the question of the distribution of seats in the convention. The decision was to give to each national chairman five seats and to each delegate four tickets in addition to his own seat, and to each alternate his own seat only. The remainder will be left in the hands of Chairman Jones.

The committee then adjourned until 4 p. m., when the temporary officers of the convention will be named.

HILL GETS BACK.

Kansas City, July 2.—Former Governor David B. Hill returned from Lincoln, Neb., at 1:30 this afternoon and went immediately to his apartments in the Coates house. He declined to discuss his conference with Mr. Bryan, saying he might have something to say later in the day. He would not say what his conference with Mr. Bryan related to.

"I am tired and hungry," said he and do not care to talk at this time."

In Mr. Hill's apartments, awaiting his arrival, were Elliott Danforth and Representatives Fitzgerald and Raper. New York, and a number of other visitors. Mr. Hill begged to be excused.

MURDERERS SENTENCED.

Seattle, Wash., July 2.—The Indians convicted of the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Horton, of Eugene, Ore., at Lynn canal, last October, were sentenced at Skagway, June 27.—Hanson, who killed Horton, will hang. Williams, who cut Mrs. Horton's throat under the eyes of Hanson, was sentenced to fifty years. Ketchino also gets fifty years. Another given forty years, and two others twenty years each.

Cuba. I want an especially strong declaration on imperialism." Representative Francis F. Newlands was the first member of the Nevada delegation to arrive. The other members are expected to reach here tonight or tomorrow.

"Nevada will not be captious about any part of the platform," said he. "We will do that which Mr. Bryan wants done. If it is his desire that a plank specifically declaring for the free coinage of silver at the rate of 16 to 1 should be inserted in the platform, it will be done. I am inclined to think that it is a splitting of hairs to note a difference between a simple reaffirmation of the Chicago financial plank and a specific declaration for the free coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1. The one would mean the same as the other. Hence either would be satisfactory to Nevada."

"What position will Nevada take on the vice presidency?"

"I have no means of knowing how the other delegates feel," replied Mr. Newlands. Personally, I am in favor of the nomination of Mr. Towne. He is a close friend of Mr. Bryan and stands for everything that he stands for; he is one of the most accomplished orators in the country, he is the man we want to send into the East to demonstrate to the people there that Bryan Democracy is just what Lincoln Republicanism was. My belief is that he would add strength to the ticket throughout the country."

Either a simple reaffirmation of the Chicago platform or the leaving out altogether of the 16 to 1 plank is favored by the members of the Alaska delegation. "We are not going to be all silver people," said L. L. Williams, of Juneau, "but we believe it is for the best interests of the party to drop that issue. Big business men out on the coast with whom we have talked say they will vote for Bryan and contribute to his fund if the 16 to 1 issue is dropped, and we think it is good politics to act accordingly."

For vice president, the delegates favor a New York man, either Congressman Sulzer or David B. Hill. United States Senators Harris, Allen and Helfield, all Populists, arrived today and will remain during the convention as spectators. All of them favor the nomination of Towne for vice president.

"I think Mr. Towne decidedly the best vote getter that can be named," said Senator Harris, "but I doubt whether the convention will have the wisdom to accept him. My opinion is that the nomination will go to either Indiana or New York."

"I have no ideas," said Senator Allen, "but the situation is, I have a yet had no time to discuss the matter with those in position to know. It is a little early, too, to make a forecast of the probable action of the convention. It is likely, however, that it will be guided by the Clark delegation, and I think the wishes of Mr. Bryan if he care to make known what his wishes are. The situation, which now appears to be somewhat chaotic, will clear up materially, I think, before the convention is called to order."

TOWNE SEEN CONFIDENT

Are Sure They Will Win the Vice Presidential Sweepstakes.

SULZER IS HOPEFUL

He Asserts Confidently That No Power Can Stop His Boom.

Kansas City, June 2.—The Towne managers say very emphatically today that their man will win the vice presidential sweepstakes. They have reached a point where they offer the Democrats certain terms and insist upon being heard. Their program is this:

The men authorized to speak for the Populists and Silver Republicans will agree with the Democratic managers that both conventions shall go ahead and nominate Bryan on the first day, July 4, but that no effort shall be made to nominate a vice presidential candidate. Committees of conference shall be appointed with a view of agreeing upon a candidate to unite the forces of the three fusion parties.

If the Democratic leaders do not agree to this program, the Populists and Silver Republicans will make no nomination of either president or vice president, but will appoint a conference on both offices to confer with the committees of the Democrats and Populists.

Some of the Democratic leaders have agreed that this is a fair proposition and have assured the Towne managers that they will do what they can to carry it out.

Another card the Towne men are playing is that Bryan is for the Minnesota man. The position said to be taken by Mr. Bryan is that the Democrats are in honor bound to support him fairly and with due consideration. He thinks that the Populists and Silver Republicans should be allowed to make their own choice, and when united with the Democrats, make those states sure for his election.

A double-ticket ticket in this campaign, and many of the leaders share his views. The story is that Bryan will support the Populists and Silver Republicans may object to withdrawing the man they have nominated. They think they are in a very good position.

Another thing which makes the Towne managers confident is the attitude of Bryan. They believe that if Sulzer is convinced that Bryan wants Towne, he will support him. They believe that Bryan will support him, but take the platform and nominate or second Towne's nomination. Of course, this may require a strong intimation from Bryan, an intimation that is scarcely probable, as Mr. Bryan does not want to appear in the role of dictator.

Meanwhile Mr. Sulzer is making a most clever canvass, and talks with the most confidence with any man or the friends of any man in the race.

"Why," he said today, "they can't stop me. They are coming to me so fast that I can't keep track of them. I have pledges from 27 delegates outside of New York, and New York ready to come to me as soon as my strength is shown. The New York vote is made on Friday. I told them 'No.' That's the kind of a fight I am making."

Since the rise of some of the Democratic leaders who went to Lincoln to see Mr. Bryan, a story has been in circulation that a rupture has been in circulation. According to the statements made by Mr. Bryan, the rupture is simply an endorsement of the Chicago platform, and that the rupture is made on Friday. Mr. Bryan may come here and on the floor of the convention, he will be compelled to decline the nomination on the floor of the convention.

BOTHA VERY ACTIVE.

Patrols Out and No Threatens an Attack.

London, July 2.—Botha is showing great activity. His patrols cover wide stretches of country, approaching near the British outposts, and engage in skirmishes, while larger bodies threaten to attack. Confident is allowed to move on an interview, said that he thought the British promptly seek to deliver. Attacks by the Boers made on Friday last at Pinar's post on Gen. Pole-Carew, and at Springs. Botha and Dewet are seemingly operating in combination. Botha is reported to have divided his force into two parties, one moving west and the other to the south, to try and effect a juncture with Dewet. Boer circulars exhorting the Boers to attack and urging the burghers to rejoin the army are out.

Lord Roberts is still in striking distance of Dewet. Lord Roberts in the course of an interview, said that he thought the Boers brought against the government by William A. Burdett-Coutts, Conservative member of parliament for Westminister, that inadequate provisions had been made for the sick and wounded, were probably based upon one hospital, and a general deduction drawn therefrom.

THE GRANT'S MISHAP.

Accident on the Transport Carrying Chaffee Not Serious.

San Francisco, July 2.—The transport Grant, with Gen. Chaffee aboard, which was forced to return to port last night by the bursting of her steam pipe which feeds her starboard engine, will probably again start for Nagasaki tonight. While the bursting of the steam pipe was not attended by any serious consequences, the officers of the boat consider it fortunate that the accident did not happen after she had reached the open sea and heavy weather, as she would have been utterly wrecked. The accident was due to the rolling of the vessel in denouement of her steam pipe which is given forty years, and two others twenty years each.

LOSS ON PROPERTY

Conservative Judges Fix the Sum at About Ten Million Dollars.

New York, July 2.—The North German Lloyd Steamship company estimates the loss of life by Saturday's fire at 200. The company took the crew lists, checked off those members who are in hospitals or reported safe and believe the others to be lost. Among the dead are a number of officers. The body of Capt. Morrow, of the Saale, has been found, burned so as to be unrecognizable.

Fortunately, the number of victims on the pier and boats was unusually small, because no steamer was due to sail except the Saale, and the only for Boston, where she was to have taken on a load of Christian Endeavorers bound for the convention in London. No passenger was lost on any of the boats. A number of Christian Endeavorers were visiting the Saale from the pier, and when the Hamburg-American line's explosion, the pier was burned down to the pile tops.

The warehouses of Palmer Campbell, which were across the street from the North German Lloyd line dock, suffered greatly, and a number of houses along the street were scorched badly. The loss of the steamship properties and other companies is estimated at approximately as follows:

The steamship line, of the German Lloyd line, cost $1,200,000, outside of the cargo, fittings and stores. The loss in the three docks of the North German Lloyd line, which were burned to the water's edge, are said to have cost $200,000. The docks were well filled with merchandise just received from abroad and valued at $1,000,000.

The Hamburg-American line dock, which had just been completed as an extension to the pier for the North German Lloyd line, was destroyed in order to prevent the spread of the flames, was damaged to the extent of $150,000. This included the loss of the dock, the loss of the pier, and the loss of the cargo.

Of the warehouses of Palmer Campbell, houses E, C, D and F were burned. Mr. Campbell said tonight that he could not give a definite estimate of his losses, but that the damage to the buildings alone would amount to at least $500,000, and the contents $1,250,000.

Eight barges and eleven canal boats were either burned or sunk with their cargoes. Total valuation, $125,000.

The Holsten Shore railway had a number of cars burned and other property damaged. Loss $7,000.

DEATHS

At St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken, this afternoon, it was stated that all of the forty-eight patients in that institution were doing well with one exception; Wilhelm East, 24 years old, a sailor on the Saale who was badly burned, and no hope is entertained for his recovery.

The North German Lloyd notified Coroner Hoffman to see that all the unidentified and unclaimed bodies have respectable burial. In many cases, the victims' bodies had been burned and charred in such horrible manner as to be beyond recognition. These will be buried first. Those that may be identified will be kept a reasonable time, with a hope that the bodies will be claimed by friends.

GETTING OUT THE DEAD.

Taking the Victims' Bodies From the Burned Steamers.

New York, July 2.—The partially submerged hulks of the North German Lloyd steamers Saale, Bremen and Mainz, smoking in the upper bay and North river, apparently as thoroughly wrecked as the Christian Endeavorers that ventured out of the harbor two years ago tomorrow.

Like the Spanish ships, these German merchantmen hold many dead men within their iron sides. A police patrol forbids any approach to the sunken steamers and warns off the curious who hover about on the banks. The bodies of the dead are being taken from the hulks and are being taken to the morgue for identification.

HALL IS TO BE READY

Only Finishing Touches Required—Gossip on the Vice Presidency.

Kansas City, July 2.—This is really the first business day of the Democratic convention. Soon after 10 o'clock the Democratic national committee assembled at the Auditorium.

The day dawned brilliantly bright and clear, with the thermometer registering in the seventies and the sun shining brightly. Within a few hours, as the sun gained ascendancy, it became intensely hot, and had not these breezes continued the heat would have been insufferable.

While the arrivals of the past few days have been by scores, they began today by the hundreds. Tomorrow they will be by thousands. The morning trains today, especially those from the East, were crowded with delegates and visitors.

After a day of the convention, the delegates and visitors are beginning to feel the heat. The morning trains today, especially those from the East, were crowded with delegates and visitors.

HAVE THEY SETTLED?

Rockefeller and Carnegie
Said to Have Harmonized
Their Differences.
CONTROLS THE LAKES

Rockefeller to Get the Carnegie Boats and the Latter the Mines.

A Cleveland dispatch, on what is said to be the best of authority, states that the little between Rockefeller and Carnegie, the great manufacturing and transportation magnates, is over, and that a truce has been declared on terms that leave the victory in the Rockefeller family. Victory is nothing new for the Rockefellers, for they have become so accustomed to it that anything else would come as a complete surprise.

The credit for this victory is given to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., the son of the Standard Oil and Lake Superior Consolidated prince, who has had charge of the transportation department of his father's millions. This is practically his first big piece of financial engineering, and the fact that it is attended with success leads to the belief that he will be a worthy successor to his father.

The little between the two interests, which has been on for about a month now, first became known to the public through the withdrawal of the Rockefeller whaleback fleet and some of the Bessemer barges from the ore trade. It was understood, was to push the wild lake freight on iron ore up to $1.25, the season contract rate, from $1.10, to which it had dropped. Later it leaked out that the object was not only to keep the ore rate up but that it was to prevent the price of iron from falling, so that the stake was larger than had been imagined at first. In both of these objects, it is now believed, Rockefeller, Jr., has been successful. Not only will the price of iron be kept from falling, but to enable him to better wield an effective influence in the freight market, the vessels that have been built, or are being built, or that are still to be built for the Carnegie interests are to be transferred to the Rockefeller fleet. In return for this, the Carnegie states, Carnegie is to be given an interest in the Rockefeller mines in Minnesota and elsewhere.

Carnegie's transportation interests are centered in the Pittsburgh Steamship company, which company, within a month, control fourteen large vessels. The Rockefeller fleet, when it is complete, will number fifty-six vessels, and with the fourteen from Carnegie the total Rockefeller armada will number seventy vessels, nearly all of large size and modern equipment. This will form a formidable leverage in the lake trade. When it is Rockefeller's pleasure that rates shall go up, with this engine he can make them. It is his advantage to the advantage of independent vessel owners, who will have the advantage of the rates he will raise. But if it ever gets to be Rockefeller's interest that the rates be lowered, he will find that it is his advantage to the advantage of independent vessel owners, who will have the advantage of the rates he will raise.

It is believed that the immediate effect of this deal will be to put the ore rate to $1.25. This will give the iron and steel market, and in all probability prevent any serious break in prices this fall.

WITHOUT A PITCHER.

Hansell's Big Duluth Team Cannot Win In That Shape.

Bayfield's crack ball team was too fast for the Duluth's pitcherless aggregation, on Saturday, Mr. Bayfield, a wholesale and retail dealer in puzzling shops and curios, proved an indomitable foe to Hansell's team. They failed to score. Yesterday afternoon, Smith, a University of Chicago twirler with an incline alone delivery was in splendid form. His curves broke sharply just in front of the plate and he hid tremendous speed. Bayfield managed to get four hits off him and one run. The pitcherless team was handicapped for pitchers. Jack Canney, the former Western leaguer failed to pitch, and Canney, the other crack twirler was unable to get away with the team. Arneson and T. Irwin were put in to do the pitching for the locals, and they did well. With only one inning to go on the slab, both games would have been exceedingly close. The score by innings in Saturday's game was:

IT IS BELIEVED THAT THE IMMEDIATE EFFECT OF THIS DEAL WILL BE TO PUT THE ORE RATE TO $1.25. THIS WILL GIVE THE IRON AND STEEL MARKET, AND IN ALL PROBABILITY PREVENT ANY SERIOUS BREAK IN PRICES THIS FALL.

Among the striking and original exhibits at the Paris exposition of 1900 have been occasioned more favorable comment than the great map of the United States, 18 by 15 feet, exhibited by the well-known advertising agency of Lord & Thomas, Chicago and New York. This map is constructed to show at a glance the various details concerning state areas and population, number of publications in each, circulation per issue, percentage of circulation to population, and the number of people who are employed, average hours of labor, average wages paid and average cost of living for yearly advertising. ### Fables of the Fall--II.

A Young man was going to Chicago to get married, and he rode in the Sleeping car so that he would be nice and Fresh for the Ceremony next Day. But he was unable to Sleep, and when the young Woman saw his Red eyes and what a General Wreck he was, she thought he had Accumulated a Jag and refused to marry him, whereat he got his Picture in the Paper for being dead.

A DULUTH BOY.

Harry Broman, Young Sailor
Killed In China, Belongs
In This City.

The dispatches from China, in another column, announce that among the sailors killed on June 25 at Tien Tsin was Harry A. Broman, of Duluth. He was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ida M. Broman, who now with her young daughter at 1429 West Superior street, and the little family is plunged into the deepest gloom and sorrow because of the death of this bright young man.

Mr. Broman is at Iron River, Wis. They have a large circle of relatives and friends.

Harry Broman was born in Duluth nearly sixteen years ago, and up to the time of his enlistment in the navy he had always lived here. He attended school up to the time of his enlistment, going to the Adams Manual. He had always wished to belong to the navy, and three years ago he prevailed upon his mother and secured her consent to enlist. He was an apprentice, and he had been most of the time with the Navy, which was Commander Watson's flagship during the war with Spain. He served through the Philippine campaign, and after it was over he had shore leave and came home for the holidays.

Since that time his mother had not seen him, though she had frequent letters from him. His letters were always bright and cheerful, and he had a full description of his life aboard ship and the scenes that the rounds of the world brought him. From Yokohama, Japan, came only about three weeks ago. That was before the vessel was ordered to China.

When news came a few days ago that several sailors had been killed at Tien Tsin, without any names being given, Mrs. Broman feared that her son was among the killed, so she was not so surprised when she learned that he had been killed. She was told of his death. Yet she and the boy's young sister are nearly heart-broken over the disaster.

Young Broman was an exceptionally bright and intelligent boy, and his school record was good. He was a favorite with his schoolmates, and his death has been a great loss to the community.

THEY MUST CONNECT

Board of Health Would Force Houses to Be Connected With Sewers.

WITHIN SIXTY DAYS

That Is Time the Board Proposes to Allow For the Work.

At a meeting of the board of health this morning it was decided to have the council adopt a resolution giving all property owners that have neglected to have their houses connected with sanitary sewers, where such connections are possible, just sixty days to make such connections. This action of the board will effect between 600 or 700 houses in the city. The board has had this matter under consideration at various times for years past, but this is the first time that it has attempted to force the property owners to make the connections for the reason that in years past many of the houses that will be effected by the order have been vacant. Now practically every

ASSESSMENTS.

Being Delivered to County Auditor—Board of Equalization July 16.

Today is the last day for assessors to make their returns to the county auditor, and among the assessors that struggled in this morning was City Assessor Johnson, whose men brought up a wagon full of books and turned them over to the county auditor. By night it is expected that all of the assessors will have made their returns, and then the work of the auditor's office on the books will begin. The board of equalization will meet on the third Saturday of this month, which will be July 16. The session is expected to be quite a warm one as there are several matters of great importance to come up. The principal thing will be the assessments on pine lands, which County Auditor Halden has had raised considerably. It is expected that the lumber interests will be in with objections. Another important matter will be the settlement of the assessments on iron properties that have been developed since the general settlement of assessments on iron properties four years ago. A large number of changes have been made since then. Not only have the values of iron properties advanced, but many properties that were non-productive then and were taxed accordingly have become producers since, and their assessments must be changed. Another many properties that were simply acres of no great value have since been developed into promising ore bodies, and this will necessitate still further changes. Altogether the board will have quite a little work to do. The board is composed of the board of county commissioners with the addition of the county auditor.

Is at Koochiching.

Mac Sagar, the missing clerk from the One Cent store, is in Koochiching or near there. She is with her sister, Mrs. Savage, and went up to the Rainy Lake country on June 14. It is reported that both she and her sister have joined fast society on the border. The police department received an anonymous message this morning giving the name of the house she was in, but they are unable to decipher the name. The above information regarding Miss Sagar is authentic and the girl's mother probably knows where she is. A little Mr. may be sacrificed to an hour's duty. Cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea come suddenly. Only safe plan is to have Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry always on hand.

Declared That Bryan Insists on a Specific Declaration on Silver.

PROGRAM DECIDED ON

Arranged to Nominate Mr. Bryan on the Fourth of July.

Kansas City, July 3.—(Bryan will not run on any platform which does not contain a specific declaration in favor of free coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1. If this convention does not put that declaration in the platform, it will have to nominate another candidate for president.)

This statement was made today to the Associated Press by Judge A. T. Tibbitts, of Lincoln, delegate-at-large from Mr. Bryan's own state, and chairman of the state delegation to this convention. It serves to emphasize the determined stand taken by the Nebraska statesman. His declaration is that he stands for a principle, and those who would have him change or modify his views are swinging simply in the wind of expediency.

Among those present are National Chairman J. K. Jones, Richard Croker, John W. Kern, Democratic candidate for governor of Indiana, and other leaders among the Democrats; Senator Teller, former Senator Dubois, former Congressman Hartmann and J. G. Brown, of the Silver Republic.

INTERIOR OF CONVENTION HALL, KANSAS CITY.

political convention and then, according to program, Mr. Bryan is to be brought to Kansas City by a special notification and escorted to committee and he will deliver his speech accepting the nomination in the same hall as his nomination was made.

In the hope of witnessing this great political scene thousands upon thousands of people are coming to Kansas City from the nearby states. The demand upon the national committee for seats is unprecedented. Tens of thousands of applications for tickets have been received from adjacent states to Kansas City. Each state has been assigned its quota of seats and that is all it will get. This city, the people of whom have done so much for the convention, have been allotted 1500.

The weather is swelling but the temperature is tempered by a slight breeze. The Cook county Democracy, the marching club's Democratic organization of Chicago, headed by Mayor Harrison and accompanied by Samuel Alschuler, candidate for governor; Delegate-at-Large George A. Trude, and a large number of the Illinois delegation, arrived on a special train over the Burlington road today. With the organization was the Cook County Democracy band of sixty pieces. The club, 400 strong, and headed by the band, formed at the Burlington depot, and with Mayor Harrison at their head, marched to the Midland. There the fun began.

The band, stationed outside the hotel and the windows of the Tammany headquarters, serenaded the New York delegation for nearly an hour, and later became the guests of the New York organization.

"The vice presidency?" said Alderman "Bath House Johnnie" Coughlin. "Oh, we have no particular candidate. They are ready for everything, from soup to finger bowls. The man the convention names is the man for us."

The entire New Jersey delegation arrived on one of the early morning trains and took up quarters at the Victoria. The delegation held a caucus on the train before arriving and elected the following: Chairman, Frank McDermitt; committee on rules and order of business, James E. Martin; committee on resolutions, Congressman W. D. Daley; member national committee, William B. Gorman; vice president, Josiah Salmons.

The Florida delegation today decided to instruct for the reaffirmation of the Chicago platform and against the insertion of a special plank calling for the ratio of 16 to 1.

Rhode Island is for 16 to 1, but is not in favor of forcing it too strongly. On the vice presidency Rhode Island is for the candidate of the party, and have formed no opinion who the man may be.

Georgia is for the reaffirmation of the silver plank platform, and have no choice for vice president.

Sentiment for the nomination of David B. Hill for vice president expressed by National Committee Chairman Clancy was echoed by a number of members of the Wisconsin delegation, who arrived today. "But we have not decided which to support for the nomination," said former Governor George R. Peck. "The delegation will caucus this afternoon and discuss the matter."

"Discuss it," chimed in another delegate, "we have discussed it, and we are in favor of the nomination of David B. Hill. We don't want to take too radical a stand on the silver question. The issues are more important."

"We maintain that it is impossible to carry any Western state with a silver plank," said Delegate J. D. Medill, of Washington, today. "We depend on our fusion allies for victory in the West, and anything else than a flat declaration in favor of free coinage would not be the unanimous sentiment of the delegation."

The Washington delegation held a caucus today and elected Thomas Malone chairman and W. H. Dunphy national committeeman. D. J. Willis was chosen as member of the committee on resolutions. The delegates declined to support James Hamilton Lewis for vice president and National Committeeman Dunphy will place him in nomination.

OFFICERS TO RETIRE. New York, July 3.—A special to the Herald from Washington says: Two officers who took part in the battle of Manila bay have been selected for compulsory retirement in accordance with the provisions of the naval personnel law. They are Lieut. John Gibson, who served on board the Boston, and Lieut. Stokely Moran, who fought the forward 8-inch turret of the Olympia. Both were selected on account of their physical condition and will be retired as lieutenant commanders.

Belmont, who has been mentioned, is not even considered by the silver element.

Western and Southern representatives assert that the fight for the vice presidential situation has narrowed down to two men, both personal friends of William J. Bryan, and both alleged to be absolutely acceptable. They are Towne, of Minnesota, and Sulzer, of New York. Of the two men, they agree Towne has had the better of the contest; because it is pointed out that he will represent a fusion of all the silver elements.

Mr. Sulzer was inclined to be reticent this morning when he was told of this situation. He admitted that he knew the East had practically decided to let convention be dominated by the Western men, and admit that Mr. Towne was the leader in the race by saying:

"Mr. Towne is very acceptable to Mr. Bryan, so as to be the better man by the leaders I will withdraw for him. We understand each other perfectly, and Mr. Bryan understands us. Mr. Towne has the advantage of already being on the tickets, and I claim to offset that by being strong in the East, and particularly in my own state and city."

Mr. Sulzer's friends claimed that several states had come to his standard today, and that he was continually under fire from his quarters with his hands and talking to state leaders.

New York state's headquarters, gave in its absolute quiet this morning, practical confirmation of the story that the delegation had determined to let the Western men lead and conduct the convention. There were very few of the New York delegates about during the morning and those who were asserted very firmly: "We don't care what they do."

The second Tammany hall delegation arrived about 4 o'clock this morning and they were too tired a crowd to care much about the situation. Mr. Croker, when asked to give his views on the situation, said: "I don't know anything about it. We're for the ticket and the platform, whatever they are."

Mr. Croker's friends, P. F. Trainor and one of his lieutenants, E. J. Trainor, were telling Bryan's friends "run."

Elliot Danforth was not disposed to talk, merely remarking: "I know that I am mentioned, but I am not putting forth any effort. I am inclined to believe that the real contest is between Mr. Sulzer and Mr. Towne."

The New York delegation is to meet this afternoon and one of the significant rumors of the morning is to the effect that Senator Patrick H. McCarey, of Brooklyn, is to be the selection for member of the committee on resolutions so that Hill will not be compelled to put himself on record on the platform or to object to any of its promises. One thing is absolutely sure and that is that the delegation will refuse to in any way give expression to its views as to a vice-presidential candidate. Even Mr. Sulzer admits this, although he says he has the support of Richard Croker and Edward Murphy.

A circular out today is signed by a committee representing the Chicago platform Democrats of New York and urges the convention to refuse to seat Richard Croker, John F. Carroll, Mayor Van Wyck, James Van Wyck, Corporation Counsel John Whalen, Board of Aldermen President Guglielmo, and the ground that they are shareholders in the "American Ice Trust" and no one knows in how many other trusts and for the other trusts and the destroyer of the latter county Chicago platform in 1897.

Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, was among today's early arrivals. He immediately announced himself for Towne for vice-president, but said that he did not consider it necessary to make specific declarations on the ratio when declaring for silver.

And the West and South New York and Indiana Try to Stem the Overwhelming Towne Tide.

Kansas City, July 3.—The Towne men today are more confident than ever that they will nominate their man for vice president. They say the fight is between Towne and Danforth, of New York, and the question of expediency will now be considered. Danforth is the personal and political friend of David B. Hill. Already, the point is being made that he is Hill's candidate, and that he is to be named for the purpose of conciliating Hill for the manner in which his suggestions were treated by Mr. Bryan on his recent visit to Lincoln.

This is a feature, however, which cuts both ways, as there is an element among the delegates who do not feel like offering anything in the way of olive branches. It is known that Hill and his friends have some hesitancy about pushing Danforth for the nomination, because they have doubts of success if there is a distinct declaration for 16 to 1.

The fact that the New Yorkers seem willing to allow the convention to take its own course without making any determined effort to name a candidate has given the Towne men a great deal of encouragement, and they are today more aggressive than ever. But from the quarters of the Eastern men, particularly from the Sulzer men, comes a story of a different nature.

The Eastern delegates are quiescent on any of the direct issues of the platform, or as to candidates. They assert that they are for anything, the Western silver delegates may decide upon. Hill's name, they say, will not be considered.

Belmont, who has been mentioned, is not even considered by the silver element.

OPPOSED BY SOME

A Switch to Be Attempted In the Vice Presidential Slate.

EAST IS QUIESCENT

And the West and South New York and Indiana Try to Stem the Overwhelming Towne Tide.

Kansas City, July 3.—A new factor was introduced into the vice presidential contest late today by an effort to unite Indiana and New York delegations on the question. There is a strong probability that before evening the two delegations will have agreed upon a man whom they will present as their candidate. As many of the other states have already declared themselves as being willing to accept any man who has been proclaimed by the Democracy of New York as capable of carrying that state in the fall election, there is but small doubt that any man having the dual endorsement of Indiana and New York will be a formidable factor.

It was reported that Danforth, of New York, had been named as the man upon whom the two states would agree. This story, upon investigation, however, was proven to be somewhat premature, as at 11 o'clock the two delegations had not agreed upon any man, and there was small prospect that they would do so for several hours.

"There has been no agreement between the two states that I know of," said Mr. Shively, of Indiana, "and I would not care to be quoted as saying that there will be an informal agreement that will carry the same weight."

That is a different thing, said Mr. Shively, with a smile, "and I would not be surprised to see some such step taken, but I am quite sure that nothing of importance has been done up to the present time. It will take several hours before the matter is in definite shape, however, and what that shape will be, I am unable to predict. I will say, however, that from what I know at the present time Mr. Danforth will be agreed upon as the most available man."

"There has been no agreement reached between the two states regarding a vice presidential candidate," said Hugh Dougherty, delegate-at-large from Indiana. "Some steps have been taken in that direction, but they have not as yet produced any result. It is likely that they will have something to show within a short time, however. No man has been agreed upon as yet, but Mr. Danforth's name may have been considered. I will not say whether it has been or not, but no definite agreement has been reached regarding him."

"When Mr. Towne's name was mentioned Mr. Dougherty said: 'We all have the highest regard for Mr. Towne as a man, and respect him highly, but I wish to say that I, and there are many others of the same opinion as myself, am not willing that, under any circumstances, shall Mr. Towne have the second place on the ticket. He is a most excellent man, but there are other excellent men who have been Democrats all their lives, have given much time and work and made as many sacrifices for the good of the Democratic party, and I think that one of those men should be rewarded in preference to Mr. Towne, who has not been a member of the party all his political life. Personally I am in favor of the nomination of Fitzhugh Lee, of Virginia.'"

"Has his name been considered by the New York and Indiana delegations?" "The matter is not yet definitely advanced at this time for me to say that any man has been really considered," Mr. Dougherty could be induced to make.

Mr. Dougherty wished to distinctly understand that there was no hard and fast alliance between the states of Indiana and New York. They were simply trying to get together on a vice presidential candidate who could run more strongly in both states than any other man.

One of the most significant happenings of the day in the vice presidential situation occurred during the forenoon in the New York state headquarters, and when it became known, the sentiment for the nomination of Elliot Danforth took a more pronounced turn. Mayor Maguire of Syracuse, the New York state clerk and Treasurer, Hughes, of the New York state Democratic committee, who have been in Lincoln, arrived here this morning and called immediately to New York state headquarters. There they found Mr. Danforth chatting with his friends, and Mr. Maguire called him aside and said:

"Mr. Danforth, if you are a candidate for vice president, are you for you?" Mr. Danforth replied: "I am not a candidate. All my desires, as you gentlemen know, are confined to my own state. I do not desire to go to Washington, and if nominated and elected it would interfere with all my plans. I am much obliged, but my ambition in politics is to serve my party in my state."

Mr. Maguire—But if the people want you, you cannot decline.

Mr. Danforth—No; but I don't want it. You know what I want in New York. Mr. Maguire—Well, if the matter is brought up in the New York state delegation this afternoon we shall vote for you.

The significance of this interview is that as Mr. Maguire is close to Mr. Bryan and has just returned from a several days' visit, he may vote the wish of Mr. Bryan to have New York state represented on the ticket, and by Mr. Danforth.

Asked point blank by the Associated Press representative if that was the case, Mr. Maguire said cautiously: "Mr. Bryan feels friendly towards Mr. Danforth. He would not, I am sure, object to his being on the ticket."

The office in New York state to which Mr. Danforth is partial is that of governor, and it is because it is believed he would be a strong candidate there and so help the national ticket that some of the leaders do not favor forcing the vice presidential nomination upon him.

As the day wore on the impression spread among the delegates that the convention would nominate either Danforth or Towne, and that a Democratic ticket that a Democrat should be named more strongly toward Danforth. The men who have been named as a modified platform were among those

Prof. Lyman, of Harvard, Says the Disease Exists.

I am surprised that at this date men who call themselves intelligent in matters of this kind should for a moment doubt the existence of this disorder and that it is

For blooded animals, men find that better has happened as I have done, so that the immediate cause of the disease is the blood of the swine and to poultry they would not for a moment entertain the further thought of the blood of the human being. It is simply due to the so-called lymphosiphia of the other classes of animals. I can only imagine that. Certainly, no man will ascribe very much imagination of mind in the case of diseases of domestic animals and dogs.

Most of the communicable diseases, and have been or some time, made the subject of careful experimental research, and have been the subject of study of those who have made a life study of the etiology and pathology of diseases that are known to be communicable. Certainly, the testimony of any one of them is worth little evidence, which is the only kind that can be symptoms recognized and described in the outbreaks being reported. The horse was taken to a livery stable, which happened to be near, in which there was a blacksmith shop. An iron was heated and probably within thirty minutes the animal had been bled from the bitten parts in the horse had been seared. Notwithstanding this, this animal was seized with the symptoms recognized and described as being those of rabies.

During a subsequent outbreak which had been discovered and located by the then cattle commission of the state, of the present year, the disease was again present in several of the near towns to the eastward of Boston, a large dog, of no particular breed, suddenly appeared one morning about the middle of the month of October, and was killed in the street. The following day, one of the streets in Lynn, a town situated seven or eight

He was not afraid, and said that he was not afraid, and that he would take his chances. Within a short time thereafter he was taken ill with symptoms that were characteristic of rabies, and he died as a result of hydrophobia and he died after dreadful suffering. During the time in which he was ill he was nursed by several of his friends, and they all became very much infected from the teeth of the sick man, which broke the skin. This man was very much frightened and went immediately to the Pasteur Institute in New York and was given the preventive treatment. Nothing of hydrophobia was ever

By addressing Thomas H. Morgan, president of the medical society of the city and of the chairman of the board of health, the speaker said:

"I could, if it were necessary, duplicate the number of rabid dogs in this city by the number, but I think sufficient has been said to show that rabies is not a new or specific communicable disease, to which the city of New York has been given, as undoubtedly exists."

In answer to the questions concerning the yellow fever epidemic, he said:

"First. This school does not teach that the disease is transmitted by the mosquito, and it has, at periods during the last fifty years, been a number of animals so affected."

Second. The above also answers the reason of the epidemic.

Third. The number of the number of cases of rabies that have been in the hospital is not sufficient to show the existence of the disease; but in order to get at their number, it is necessary that the disease be made through records extending back possibly somewhat longer than that, but will do so if an absolute answer to your third question is desired."

Fourth. I should say that there have been twenty-five or thirty such animals here in the city of New York, and I am confident they come in, at more or less long intervals, is present with us."

As to the question of the existence, at this time, of any cases of rabies in the city of New York, he said:

"I have not seen any cases of rabies in men; but in the past I have seen numerous cases of rabies in dogs, and I have been present in men that had been, with-

BRIGHT FOR TOWNE

"I don't want it, I won't take it, I wouldn't have it," said Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, today when asked if he was a candidate for the vice-presidency. "I'm not looking for anything," he continued.

"But some of the Illinois delegates are for you for vice-president."

"Well," said Mr. Harrison, "they'd better get off and get off quick and get with the winner. I'll be a man from New York, I am for William McKinley and for his strong and I believe the support of the Illinois delegation will be given him. I think he is the strongest man in the convention."

The Michigan delegation arrived today and announced itself as favorable to Towne.

"We are not interested for him," said Rush Culver, delegate-at-large, "but we have passed resolutions saying that we heartily approve of his candidacy. We do not think it is our duty to support the man who is the strongest man in the convention."

DANGER TO SHIPS

Unfit and Unseaworthy Vessels Tempted Into the Ore Carrying Trade.

LUMBER RATES LOW

So the Tender Bottom Hookers are Imperiling Their Crews.

In a letter to a Detroit paper, Capt. Henry Leisk, of the steamer P. J. Ralph, reports that some of the ore docks at Duluth lately disregard the wishes of the masters of vessels and force them to take a full packet of ore whether the vessel is overloaded or not. He adds that as a result of this arbitrary loading of vessels many have been wrecked in an unseaworthy condition. Missions are docked, which are the ore referred to by Capt. Leisk, though the name is not given in his letter, characterizing this assertion as an unfounded rumor. It is probable that the missions are all associated with vessels that are used to carrying ore will bear out that statement. This year a number of lumber boats have come into the harbor, and there is no question that the tender bottom hookers are imperiling their crews. The fact that the tender bottom hookers are imperiling their crews is a fact that is not to be denied. ## IT LOOKS BRIGHTER

Lumbermen Find Outlook Considerably Better Than a Few Weeks Ago.

IS AFTER STUFF, TOO
Southwest Inquiring For Stuff In This Market—Rains Will Help Some.

The announcement that sales of lumber made to Eastern buyers by manufacturers here is a pleasing one to the lumbermen at Duluth and at all the places where the Eastern market is dependent on to take the output. The men who have been firm all along and have predicted that the East would have to come to it and buy lumber at the prices demanded see in this the confirmation of their judgment. No very great movement is expected for some time, however, and it is not anticipated that buying will become general for a few weeks.

One of the lumbermen who has been particularly firm and who has insisted that if the heat of the taken manufacturers would stand firm they would get their prices, said yesterday that the situation is better for the manufacturers now than it has been. The Southwest is beginning to inquire for lumber in this market and is paying good prices for what it is taking. One mill has already sold half of its output of Norway pine to the Southwest, and the prices are just as good as they could get down the lakes. In fact even better. The only difference is that the higher price of the lumber more than makes up the cost of handling. For instance, it has been getting nearly $1 a thousand more than it got down the lakes for the same lumber, and the additional cost of handling does not run much over $100 a thousand. The same man said that in a few days there have been inquiries for about 100 cars of white pine from the Southwest and that he has no doubt that the demand from that section will become general.

The Southwest, which means the territory below Minneapolis, will undoubtedly have a large storage of lumber. The mills are running, and the lumber is being cut, and the market is being built up. The lumbermen are all looking for a better market than they have had for some time. The lumbermen are all looking for a better market than they have had for some time. The lumbermen are all looking for a better market than they have had for some time.

A few days ago the Herald said that the rain at Duluth and in the St. Paul and St. Louis rivers had brought down 10,000,000 feet of logs was not believed by the lumbermen. The amount was probably not more than half that. It is learned now that the amount has reached 10,000,000 feet. The rains of this week will help matters considerably, but there has not been enough. The ground is very dry and the great deal of the rain soaks in instead of running off into the streams, as it would if the ground were better supplied with moisture. The lumbermen are all looking for a better market than they have had for some time. The lumbermen are all looking for a better market than they have had for some time.

TO MAKE THE EVY

County Commissioners and County Auditor Have a Busy Month Ahead.

THE TAXASSESSMENT

To Fix That Next Monday—Board of Equalization a Week Later.

The members of the board of county commissioners and the county auditor have a busy month ahead of them, after they get through celebrating the Fourth and the circus get away from town. The first work will be at the meeting of the county board next Monday, when, in addition to the routine business, the law requires that the levy for taxes for county purposes shall be made. After that, one week later, the county board and the county auditor will form the board of equalization, and that will be a busy session also.

The July meeting is one of two that the law requires each year, and it is required in order that the levy may be made at that time. County Auditor Hansen's force is engaged in getting up a statement of expenses of the county for the last half of 1899 and the first half of 1900, which is to be used in enabling the board to get at the amount of the levy that will be necessary.

As The Herald has stated before, it will not be necessary to make much of a levy. If the county has a surplus, it could be apportioned from the general fund, in which most of it is located, and not be drawn upon for other than general purposes. In such a case, there will be no need for any levy, for there is ample fund in the general fund for all the county's needs. This question will have to be settled before the board can make any progress, and will likely be submitted to County Attorney Phelps.

It is held that the general fund cannot be used for any other than general purposes, though the board will need make no levy for general purposes, but it will have to make small levies for other purposes. In such a case, there will be no need for any levy, for there is ample fund in the general fund for all the county's needs. ## NO CONTRACTS.

People Must Buy Coal Out-right Again This Year—

Price Now Low.

Instead of going down, as the price of coal usually does, during the summer months, it may be expected to go up. The price to retailers has already been advanced 25 cents per ton, and it is expected that an advance to the consumer will follow. Coal men say that prices will not get any lower this summer than they are now, and that people will make no mistake in getting their winter's stock of coal in now. The price, however, is not much less than it was last winter. During the winter coal was $7.25 and egg and stove coal were $7. Now all three are selling at $6.50, and this is the price that the consumer will get. The coal men say that this is the best price they will get this summer. Cargo coal is now $5.75.

An increase in the price of coal at this time of the year is unprecedented, and it indicates higher prices before winter. The coal men say that the country's prosperity is the cause of the raise. They say that the country is doing so well that the coal men are able to raise their prices. The coal men say that the country is doing so well that the coal men are able to raise their prices. ## BOWERY'S HOT TIME

Kept the Police Busy Chasing the Exuberant Fighters All Night.

HIS STORY DOUBTED

William Senso Found With Cut Neck—Lays It to a Woman.

A large and husky woodsman picked up early this morning by the police in an unconscious condition and with an ugly gash in his neck, claims that a member of the Bowery club, who does bewildering stunts at the Parlor theater and deals out soothing drinks and kind words between acts, assaulted him in the shadows of a dark hallway last night. His name is Walter Senso. He claims that as he was passing out of the vaudeville house the woman jumped at him and struck him twice in the neck with a knife. He was found in front of the Montreal house on the Bowery about 2 o'clock by Officer William Terry.

At first it was thought that he was very seriously slashed, and the police suspected a gang of Bowery rounders, but later were led to believe that Senso cut his own throat. His story about the vaudeville dancer is regarded as exceedingly strange and somewhat weird. In the first place, he says that he had no social dealings with the woman that did the cutting. He did have a few words with another, because the frail thing tried to make him pay champagne prices for a bottle of beer. He is very positive, however, that this one did not do the cutting.

When taken to the station he was unconscious, but later recovered sufficiently to have a session of delirium tremens. The cut was not deep, and this morning the man is apparently in good condition, his wound having been dressed by a physician during the night.

The Bowery celebrated the dawning of the Fourth in a wild fashion last night. It was one long fight, and the officers on duty say that they would not sooner get one fight broken up than another started.

Along toward morning John Howard started out on a general survival of the fittest. With a large collection of untamed vocabulary he started out to make every person in sight chew tetra firma. At Fifth avenue west he stopped in a group of a dozen or more, whose presence was missing after he had made his stand known.

Then he proceeded up the Bowery, till he came to the shooting gallery. Three or four were standing in the doorway. "You fellows ain't the guy what I am. Just watch me give it to Red Headed Jake in de solar plexus."

With this he made an uncertain swing at James McGrath, who ducked, and the others cut the ground on the bias in their efforts to get away. Howard's fist went smashing through a window, and the rattle of falling glass caused an officer to hurry to the scene.

"Fear me not, merry man!" yelled the would-be desperado, as the policeman approached. "I'm de crankiest bloke what ever lived, but I won't harm yez. Take me at my word."

Instead the policeman took him by the arm, and at headquarters he couldn't go to sleep till he had imparted the information that he was "the greatest what ever happenin'." In police court this morning he entered a plea of not guilty and the hearing was set for tomorrow afternoon, as was also that of James McGrath, whom Howard tried to assault.

John Lee was arrested last night for trying to pass counterfeit money. He walked into Ole Olson's saloon at the corner of First avenue east and Superior street and offered a bad dollar in payment for some liquid refreshment. His case will come up tomorrow.

Jennie Sherman, charged with leading such a fast life as to endanger the morals of that stretch of territory bounded on the west by Lake avenue, on the east by Lake Superior, on the south by the canal and the north by the fire limits, was sentenced to go to the county jail for ten days or pay a fine of $10 and costs.

Frank Daniels and Frank Clarence each got ten days for drunkenness, and C. K. Moran was sentenced to celebrate his Fourth in West Superior.

West Duluth

The Fourth of July celebration was a grand success, despite the untoward weather conditions. The parade was one of the largest and finest ever seen in the city, and in the turnout of secret societies and floats certainly surpassed any ever given. It was over a mile long, with a dense formation. It was led by Mr. Confor as marshal of the day, attended by a staff of aides consisting of a member from each of the secret societies in line. Every secret society lodge in West Duluth was in line, as well as many from down-town. Some of the West Duluth lodges had as many as 200 members in line. The uniform ranks of the K. of P. and the Catholic Order of Foresters also took part, both having large turnouts. The Red Men were out in force. Nearly every business house in West Duluth was represented by a float, many of them being very ornately decorated. A feature of this part of the parade was the Lessor mill patriotic float, drawn by twelve white horses, driven by Uncle Sam and bearing Columbus and the states and dependencies.

The Culver and Gorman G. A. R. posts and the veterans of the Spanish war were prominent features.

Music was furnished by the Minnesota K. of P. band.

Owing to the rain the patriotic exercises following the parade were cancelled.

ducted in Juveland's canvas pavilion opposite the fire hall.

HOPE TO GET IT NOW.
It is hoped that the resolution passed by the council Monday "exonerating" the fire commissioners will result in speedily bringing the fire engine to West Duluth. In this connection it is hoped, also, that the fire commissioners now feel easy in their consciences by virtue of the exoneration they demanded and received and that in the fulness of their content and satisfaction they will forgive West Duluth for being on earth, forget the past and be willing to begin a new page in the account.

In the event of their proving to be still recalcitrant and withholding the engine, the question of what could be done by West Duluth has been discussed. It has been suggested that a revolver sent by the fire engine, but that has been brought for the machine, but that has been rejected. The Duluth club at a special session yesterday, passed a resolution declaring that if the commissioners do not send the engine now they are real mean old things.

STORES WELL DECORATED.
The business men of West Duluth decorated their store buildings handsomely for the Fourth. A feature of the decoration was the trees placed along the edges of the sidewalk, making Central avenue a variable bower of green. Many of the effects were decidedly original and necessitated a considerable outlay besides the artistic ingenuity necessary and the time consumed in preparing the designs.

WEST DULUTH THIEFS.
Edward Brown, is at home on Louisville, Ky., where he is taking a course in dentistry.
Louis mill, which shut down because of a shortage of logs, is expected to start saving again Monday. The recent rains have greatly improved the situation and the lumbermen are encouraged to hope that from now on they will be able to get logs.

P. C. Smith has returned from Ann Arbor, Mich., where he went for treatment for rheumatism.

Mr. and Mrs. Matheson, of Forty-ninth avenue and Wadena street, have lost two little girls from diphtheria in the last three days. Emma May, aged 6, dying Sunday night, and Hilma, aged 4, on Monday night. Interment was at Onondaga cemetery.

BLEW HIS FINGERS OFF.
Duluth proper was completely outclassed by West Duluth when it came to celebrating the "Fourth." Out in the Eighth ward enterprising citizens put up a patriotic program that would have been a credit to almost any city, while down town the celebration was confined almost entirely to the Bowery, where one man blew off a couple of fingers with a cannon cracker, and an orator, with a voice as harmonious as the rattle of a milk wagon at 4 a. m., was advertised to read the Declaration of Independence. He got mixed on his lines and recited Gray's "Elegy in a Country Graveyard" instead. When he came to an end with a driving finish a passer maiden led the thunderous applause, which can only be compared with the booming of the surf on a rock-bound coast. Don't know what that sounds like, but it must have been something like that.

John Nagle was the man that furnished the principal excitement. Two of his fingers were very badly damaged by the premature explosion of a cannon cracker, and he was taken to St. Mary's hospital.

THE DAY WE COMMEMORATE

STATUE OF
LAFAYETTEPresented to French Republic By Youth of the United States.

Eloquent Address By Archbishop Ireland, Orator of the Day.

Paris, July 4.—The presentation of the Lafayette statue to the republic of France is a fitting tribute to the youth of the United States, took place today. The presentation speech was made by Ferdinand Peck, commissioner general for the United States to the Paris exposition.

Gen. Horace Porter, United States ambassador, presided at the ceremony of unveiling the statue and delivered an address in both English and French. A speech was also delivered by Robert L. Thompson, author of the monument work, and sculptor Paul W. Bartlett explained his conception for the equestrian figure of Lafayette. The statue of the day was Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, who said: "Today a nation speaks her gratitude to a nation. America proclaims her remembrance of freedom's fathers conferred upon her by France. France, America salutes these America's fathers. Great is the obligation, not unusual to it is her gratitude. We think to France in the name of America, under commission from her senate and house of representatives, from her youths who through her schools, and from the tens of millions of her people who rejoice in the rich inheritance won in years past by the allied armies of France and America. We are hidden by America to give in the hearing of the world testimony of her gratitude to France. Once weak and poor, in sore need of sympathy and aid, today the poor of the night, self-sufficing, asking for nothing, she respects and friendship to which her merits may entitle her, the republic of the United States of America, from which in the days of her dire necessity there came to her now rich and chivalrous support. Noble men and noble nations forgive injuries; they never forget favors. On the fourth day of July, in the year 1772, the American colonies of Great Britain made proclamation of their freedom and independence. A nation was born in the name of the rights of manhood and citizenship, in the name of civil and political liberty. But soon fleets and armies were speeding across the sea to make America's proclamation null and void. Although large numbers of the people of Great Britain were not enemies of America, and although the civil and political rights in defense of which the colonists had risen in rebellion, were substantially such as the English people had inherited, they demanded and won for themselves, not life and enlightenment but freedom. Liberty would not reign in America. War burst forth. Was the new-born nation to be allowed to live, or was liberty at whose command she had sprung into being, to be driven from earth before the availing eyes of humanity. Such was the awful issue. Bunker Hill, Trenton, Saratoga, Monmouth told us of the skill of America's commanders and of the valor of her soldiers. All that brave hearts and stout arms could do, Washington and his volunteers were sure to do. But yet, could America hope for ultimate triumph? She had only a limited population from which to recruit her defenders; she was without money to purchase food and clothing, arms and ammunition; she owned no navy; and the nation with which she was confronted was one whose exchequer was exhausted, whose soldiers and seamen were legion, whose ships ploughed every ocean of the earth. There was before America the peril of crushing defeat on the battlefield; there was before her the peril of the gloom of despair, darkening the skies above her, beaming the souls of her people and rendering them powerless to turn to best advantage even the meagre resources at their disposal. There is a land which is above all other lands the land of chivalry, of noble impulses and generous sacrifice, the land of devotion to ideals. At the call of a high-born principle her sons, with souls attuned by nature to the harmonies of the true and beautiful, leap instinctively into the heroic, resolved at any cost to render such principle a reality in the life-current of humanity. The pages of his history are glittering with the names of heroes and martyrs, of kindly soldiers and saintly missionaries. At the close of the last century France was, more than ever, ready to heed to an appeal made in the name of human rights. The spirit of liberty was hovering over the land, never again to depart from it, even if for a time lulled in its aspirations by the excesses of friends or the oppression of foes. To France America turned and spoke her hopes and fears; her messengers pleaded her cause in Paris; quick and generous was the response which France gave to the appeal. Gilbert du Motier, Marquis de Lafayette, 'Oh, that words of mine could express the full burning love which our revolutionary sires did bear to this illustrious son of old France! Oh, that I could pronounce his name with the reverence with which my countrymen across the sea wish me to pronounce it before the people of France. In America two names are the idols of our national worship, the burden of our side tale, the inspiration of the poet's song, the theme of the orator's discourse. The name of him who was the father of his country—George Washington; and the name of him who was the true and trusty friend of Washington, Gilbert Motier, Marquis de Lafayette. Strange were it if America did not cherish the name of Lafayette. He loved America. 'From the moment that I heard the name of America,' said he, 'I loved her; from the moment I learned of her struggles for liberty, I was inflamed with the desire of shedding my blood for her. He understood, above most men of his time, the full significance of America's contest. 'Never,' said he, 'had so noble a purpose offered itself to the judgment of man; it was the last struggle for liberty, and its defeat would have left freedom without a home and without hopes. His devotion to America was as unselfish as his love. 'I offer myself,' he wrote, 'to serve the United States with all possible zeal, without pension or allowance. Wealth and rank, the favor of the court and king, high distinction in the service of his own country, the endearments of wife and child—all that ambition could covet or opportunity promise, the youth of nineteen summers put resolutely aside to cast his lot with a far-off people battling against fearful odds and that at a moment when their fortunes were at their lowest ebb, and hope had well nigh abandoned their standards. When the agent of America in France sadly confessed that he was unable to furnish a ship to carry him and other volunteers, Lafayette said, 'I will buy a ship and take your men with me.' Given a command in the army of Louis, Lafayette was at all times the 'preux chevalier, sans peur et sans reproche.' The highest traditions of French chivalry were revived, a Roland, a Bayard, a Duguesclin lived again in the camps and on the battlefields of America.

GEN. HORACE PORTER.

First was he ever to attack, last in retreat. When his charger fell he fought on foot; with blood streaming from his wounds, he still faced the foe, when his soldiers quailed before overwhelming masses of the enemy, he compelled them by his own unflinching courage to hold their ground and turned defeat into victory. 'The Marquis,' says an official report, 'is determined to be in the way of danger.' fearless when fearlessness availed, he was slow and self-controlled when haste was fatal. 'This soldierman,' wrote Washington, 'united to all the military fire of youth, an uncommon maturity of judgment.' Washington knew men well, and trusted only where trust was justified. To Lafayette he confided most important and perilous enterprises—tasks which were always fulfilled with consummate ability. One is lost in amazement at the thought that this youth, bordering on his twentieth year, should display so much prudence and skill as characterized certain operations of the war which had fallen to his lot.

So hopeless was his position at Barren Hill, so certain seemed his defeat, that Gen. Howe, before he marched against him, invited friends to meet at dinner a captive Marquis; when the hour for dinner arrived, Lafayette and his men were far from danger, and the too confident general was alone with his anger and disappointment.

The critical campaign of Virginia was conducted entirely under the leadership of Lafayette. The opposing forces outnumbered 4 to 1, those under the American general; they had the advantage of abundant supplies and of a perfect equipment; they were commanded by experienced and distinguished men, Gen. Phillips first, and afterwards, Lord Cornwallis. 'The boy cannot escape me,' said Cornwallis. But the 'boy' did escape him, and furthermore, foiled him in all his plans; he so fatigued and harassed the British forces, that they finally withdrew to the coast, there to await fresh developments of the campaign. Left in possession of Virginia, Lafayette was soon able to perform a most important service in what was to be the closing scene of the revolutionary war. He held Cornwallis fast in Yorktown, pending the arrival of Washington and Rochambeau. It was now the turn of the 'boy' to say, 'The general cannot escape me.'

By the magnanimity of soul, and by his grace of manner, less than by his military prowess, he won all hearts and became the idol of the American army. He proved himself to the utmost fiber of his soul, an American, as proud of America as the proudest of her patriots, the champion before all contestants of her honor and her fair name. More cordially even than his American companions in arms, he bore the terrible hardships of the war again

Kansas City, July 5.—Convention hall was again besieged today by eager and excited thousands, and long before the time set for opening the second day's proceedings of the convention all of the streets approaching the building were solidly massed with humanity, moving forward to the many entrances.

Expectancy was at a high pitch, as it was universally felt that the day had in store the great events of the convention. By 10 o'clock, thirty minutes before the time set for the meeting of the convention, nearly every seat in the galleries was occupied.

The delegates were much more deliberate and came in slowly. The crowd had gotten abroad that there would be a fight on the floor over the adoption of the platform, and the delegates, who would be long and hard after it had once begun, they preferred to come only at the last minute, that their stay in the crowded hall might be made no longer than necessary.

The crowd was anxious to see Senator Hill, and on two occasions when a bull-headed man came through the door leading to the delegates' seats, they set up the cry of "Hill," which had proved so sensational a feature at both sessions yesterday. The senator, however, was one of the last of the delegation to arrive.

The police arrangements of the hall were a decided improvement over those that characterized the opening of the convention yesterday. During the sessions on Wednesday dense crowds of delegates were allowed to congregate in front of the speaker's stand, in front of the press seats, and up and down the aisles, and at times the crowd was so packed that it was impossible to pass through them at all. These people were also largely responsible for the confusion that made it utterly impossible during the greater part of the session of yesterday to get the voice of any man heard ten feet from the rostrum. Today a swarm of local police was on hand, and they started in promptly hustling down the passage-ways all people who were not decorated with the proper credentials in the hall or crowding through the doors.

The old familiar tunes, played by the hands in the galleries, brought forth the familiar yells from the crowd. As usual, "A Dixie" and "A Hot Time" were played, and as usual when a Tammany man shows up, there was the cry of "Hill," which reminded them "that there are others."

The audience began to manifest signs of impatience as the time went by for calling the convention to order, and the officials made no motion to proceed. The hum of the multitudes increased to a dull roar. The aisles were jammed, and the area in front of the platform was packed with shouting masses of delegates, officials and subordinates. Many of the well-known leaders went to the platform to confer on the status of the convention's business—White, of California; Staley, of Texas; Cable, of Illinois; McCleary, of Kentucky.

The band labored incessantly to offset the confusion, and the melody of patriotic airs served to keep the crowd in good humor and maintain the patriotic fervor. When the Texans raised to the top of their standard the huge horns of a Texas steer surmounted by the legend, "Texas gives 200,000 majority," there was a roar of cracking, shouting and an enthusiastic tribute to Texas Democracy.

Governor Beckham, of Kentucky, was given an enthusiastic reception as he came in, a large number of delegates crowding around to shake him by the hand.

At 11 o'clock, the slender figure of Chairman Richardson loomed up above the platform assemblage. He swung the gavel lastly, and beyond the din could be heard his calls for order.

Slowly, quiet was brought out of the confusion and the chairman presented the opening invocation, the entire audience, delegates and spectators, standing reverently with bowed heads, while the words of prayer echoed through the building.

O Almighty God, Thy kingdom come, and Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Thou art infinite in love and justice and equity and mercy and compassion. We pray Thee, in all things, that we may be as Thy friends and the oppressed, wherever they may be, as claimants on our protection. Thou art the supreme power on earth. Teach us how to make our nation truly and justly drive from our midst the forces of evil and the greed of gain. Teach us to be strong and at the running mate for Mr. Bryan. He said the Democracy of the United States was in the saddle to fight for the principles enunciated by Thomas Jefferson, who, in the present day was personified by William J. Bryan.

Mayor Rose made a strong appeal to the convention to remember the great army of German voters throughout the United States. These voters, he declared, held the balance of power between the Democratic and Republican parties.

"We believe we can secure their cooperation," he said, with earnestness, "and this convention ought to put out to them every inducement to stand by us."

The fight of the approaching campaign was to be made, he maintained, east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio, and he warned the convention that unless the Democratic party could carry some of these states victory was scarcely possible. This statement was received with cheers from the delegates and the audience.

"Hill," "Hill," "Hill," came the cry again as Mr. Rose concluded, but the hands broke out with the "Star Spangled Banner." The patriotic strains had no sooner subsided than the Hill wave passed over the assembly.

Soon delegates went with the spectators in the Hill demonstration, while some of the New Yorkers sought to offset the demand by shouting for "Grady, Grady."

Azelin the band came to the rescue, and the burras for Hill gave way to "Dixie." At every pause, however, the Hill shouters clamored for their favorite.

Both Chairman Richardson and Senator Beckham, of Kentucky, moved up and down the front of the platform, reticulating wildly and making pantomimic appeals for order.

When the Hill demonstration had calmed, the chairman introduced J. T. McCullough, of Indianapolis, for another speech on current public questions. He said only a few words when the audience on the stand in whispered conference with the speaker, springing wings by the young leader from the old Bay state, while another element continued the demand for Hill.

When quiet was partially secured the chair recognized Mr. Williams, who submitted a resolution endorsing the committee of nine delegates to be appointed by the chair for the purpose of conducting the campaign for Governor J. W. Beckham of Kentucky.

"No, no," followed the reading, but the resolution was put to a vote, and amid much confusion on the floor was declared to have been adopted.

Congressman James Williams of Illinois was then introduced by Chairman Richardson. He opened his remarks by an appeal to all Democrats to stand together on the platform, which, he declared, would be broad enough to hold them all. He spoke briefly and was frequently applauded.

As Mr. Williams took his seat, Chairman Richardson announced: "We will now be addressed by Governor J. W. Beckham of Kentucky." Instantly there was a roar of applause, and delegates and spectators, springing wings by the young governor of Kentucky, waved their hats and handkerchiefs in triumph.

The greeting was a fitting counterpart to the reception given to Governor Taylor, of Kentucky, in Philadelphia. When Governor Beckham reached the stand where all could see him, he was given a reception as enthusiastic as any speaker who thus far addressed the convention.

The galleries did not respond with the same heartiness. The young governor of Kentucky is a man 5 feet 9 or 10 inches tall and clean shaven. He was dressed in a modest suit of dark serge and spoke slowly and with deliberation. His first assertion that, in his opinion, the enthusiastic reception of his state, called forth another moment later when he promised that Kentucky would be carried safely for the Democratic party. His remark that of late there had been considerable exodus of criminals from his state evoked laughter and applause and a few cries of "Taylor."

"We have had such a dose of Republican rule" said the speaker, "that Kentucky is prepared to accept any platform which the Democratic party will present. No matter what the platform may be, Kentucky will stand upon it and with cries of 'go on,' but the young governor only bowed and left the platform."

After the cheers with which Governor Beckham's speech was received had subsided, one of the delegates in Montana started the tune of the old song, "My Old Kentucky Home," and one verse of it was sung with vigor, the singing being followed by great cheering as the young governor resumed his seat.

Chairman Richardson, at the conclusion of the demonstration, introduced Hon. J. W. Miles, of Maryland, who addressed the convention in support of conservative action upon the platform.

As Mr. Miles concluded, Chairman Richardson announced that he had been informed the platform committee would be ready to report at 3:30. Thereupon a motion was agreed to to adjourn until that hour, and the vast audience fled out of the building amid enthusiastic shouts of the favorite local song, followed by great cheering as the young governor resumed his seat.

In that way he has been playing on two sides and he is caught now where he is not representing the people of either his district or the state."

interests of the party. There has been presented to the convention the name of a man who is the intellectual and moral center of the party, and that gentleman is the Hon. C. A. Towne. (Great cheering.)

I know that there are many among the delegates who are under a misapprehension with respect to Mr. Towne. I know of my own knowledge that after the campaign of 1896, in which he did such valiant service, he desired to abandon the Silver Republican organization and go in the Democratic party without reservation, and I know, also, gentlemen, that it was upon the request, with urgency, of the leaders of the Democratic party that he was dissuaded from taking the course, and had it not been for that Mr. Towne would have been standing here with as much right to the name of Democrat as I have to the name of Republican.

There are several states in this Union in which the balance of power is held by a party or parties that dominate themselves merely, not they are our friends, they are present in this city to extend the right hand of fellowship. Fellow Democrats, it is time that the Republican party and the Silver Republican party, each to itself, and we have the opportunity here today of doing the work that will create one solid platform to march to victory. (Great cheering.)

We all know that Mr. Towne has not his superior as a public debater. In the United States, the Republican party has put up for the second place a grandstand performer—laughter—and we need a man for our second place who can attend to the case of Theodore

When he spoke it was with deliberation and he was given strict attention, particularly by the local audience. His eulogy for Teller and Towne called for a burst of applause, and his statement that if they had been Republicans their support of silver with Mr. Bryan entitled them to seats in this convention, was the signal for more enthusiasm. In his closing remarks he seconded Mr. Stevenson, and said that who differed in 1896 should be welcomed to the party in 1900, if they would come, was announced.

Nebraska passed in the call for nominations, saying they had nobody to present as a candidate.

Nebraska had F. G. Newlands present their views. He named Towne as their choice, and the minute he mentioned the name there were calls for a vote. The audience was displaying its impatience with the delay.

When New Hampshire was called, Col. Henry O. Kent made a short speech in favor of Stevenson.

Delegate Daley, of New Jersey, rose to second the nomination of Hill. He spoke vigorously and his terse speech called forth loud cheers.

Patrick H. McCarran rose in his seat when the roll call reached New York, and announced that the Empire state would yield its time to Delaware.

L. Irving Handy, of that state, took the platform and, like Mr. Daley, spoke for Hill. He declared that although the senator had declined, his soldier had never walked beneath the Democratic flag and when he was nominated he would take it.

The convention was becoming very impatient over the length of succeeding "times" before he concluded.

Senator White, of California, spoke energetically from the platform, declaring that those who did not desire to hear the nominating speeches could go out. If they did not care to go out, they should keep quiet.

South Dakota from the floor seconded the nomination of D. B. Hill.

S. M. Gates, a son of North Carolina, presented the name of Julian Carr from his state. He spoke briefly and escaped the usual remark conveyed in the roll of "times."

Ohio put in nomination the name of A. W. Patrick. His name was presented by M. C. Daugherty. He was one of the few speakers whose seconding speech could be heard at any distance from the platform.

Oregon seconded the nomination of Hannibal Lewis, of Washington.

W. H. Snowden, of Pennsylvania, read his speech seconding Stevenson from a yellow slip of paper. Although he spoke clearly and distinctly, the crowd, in its impatience, interrupted him with its calls of "louder," "louder," "louder." He read his speech, however, and he was called to such an extent that Chairman Richardson was compelled to use his gavel.

NAME BRYAN.

The Silver Republicans nominate him for President By Acclamation.

Kansas City, July 6.—William Jennings Bryan was nominated for president by acclamation by the Silver Republican convention.

Senator White, of California, spoke energetically from the platform, declaring that those who did not desire to hear the nominating speeches could go out. If they did not care to go out, they should keep quiet.

South Dakota from the floor seconded the nomination of D. B. Hill.

S. M. Gates, a son of North Carolina, presented the name of Julian Carr from his state. He spoke briefly and escaped the usual remark conveyed in the roll of "times."

Ohio put in nomination the name of A. W. Patrick. His name was presented by M. C. Daugherty. He was one of the few speakers whose seconding speech could be heard at any distance from the platform.

TOWNE AND ADLAI.

Duluthian Seemed to Lead Procession With the Illinoisan.

Kansas City, July 6.—There was something of a haze about the vice presidential situation, even when the convention was held in the city of the future. Mr. Stevenson seemed to have the largest following, with Mr. Towne next. But the Duluthian seemed to lead the procession, and the Illinoisian followed him.

Mr. Towne, who had been nominated by the convention, was the first to be nominated. He was followed by Mr. Adlai Stevenson, who was nominated by the convention. The Duluthian seemed to lead the procession, and the Illinoisian followed him.

After a time he came back to the lake and a schoolmaster. In the morning of November he was wrecked off Galveston, Ont., and for forty-eight hours was adrift in the sea. He was rescued by a fishing boat, and after being covered very quickly, and after going to Port Huron, shipped at once on another sailing vessel. On his first trip to this coast and within a month of his terrible experience on the other, he was again wrecked. This time he was picked up by another sailing vessel.

With the advent of steam vessels on the lake, the sailing vessels were gradually worked up until he was commander of the Lehigh Valley line, and in 1885 he was the last ship he sailed on. He spent the winter in the Lake Shore yards at Cleveland. When the ice mixed up in a week one day and his leg was terribly torn and lacerated.

In 1888 he came to Duluth, and went into the coal business, continuing for two years. Later he went into the real estate business with A. W. Wain, and continued with him until 1894, and in 1895 he formed a partnership with G. A. Towne, which still continues.

Capt. LaSalle was one of the early members of the shipmasters' association, and his pennant number is 18. He was a member of the Duluth board of trade and one of the directors, and he was also a Mason. He was one of the most popular members of the Duluth sailing club, a sport which he took the deepest interest.

Capt. LaSalle has been twice married, and has two children from the first union. Two of these, Jessie and Frank, were killed in the wreck of the Lehigh Valley line. About a year ago Capt. LaSalle left for Europe in the hope of benefiting his health, and he returned much improved, but it was not for long. Again he went to California, and for a time he was better. The illness, however, was only temporary, and he returned about a month ago.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at his residence in Chester street, and will be taken to Chicago for interment.

JOURNALISM ON SHIPBOARD.

It is well known that many interesting papers make a regular appearance on the ships of the Pacific coast. The Philadelphia Times, which is a well-known printed and cleverly illustrated, often contains a regular appearance of the life spent on board.

Local Demonstration Late Starting But a Big One.

Lincoln, Neb., July 6.—Chief interest in Lincoln today in the Kansas City convention was the demonstration of the platform in the final adjournment. It is believed the demonstration will be a success. The local demonstration in honor of Mr. Bryan, which was held in the city of the future, was a success. The demonstration was held in the city of the future, and was a success.

Mr. Bryan was asked what he thought of the adoption of the platform in the present form would have on the vice presidency. He replied that it might eliminate some candidates who would remain in the contest had the platform contained a mere reaffirmation of the silver plank of 1896. No names were mentioned, of course.

The discussion of Mr. Bryan's possible visit to Kansas City came up in a request for a bulletins. Mr. Bryan said that while touring the bulletins he had done some figuring with the result that he had found that the delegates had put in two solid hours shouting. He jokingly remarked that he guessed he would not go to Kansas City for the convention, but he would be shouted out and on his arrival they could not make a bulletins from the papers would then state that he did not meet a cordial reception.

About the city there was much speculation as to the result of the nomination. It was believed with delight by the hotel people, who are already preparing to accommodate the delegates, that the delegates shall visit Lincoln on their return. The Chicago Chronicle, which is expected here and doubtless many of the Eastern and Western delegates will stop here.

If Mr. Bryan does not make the Kansas City trip, the number who will come to Lincoln will be much less. Friends who expected Mr. Bryan would leave for Kansas City on the morning of July 5, at the depot in force but he did not put in an appearance and it was concluded he had decided not to go at all.

CAPT. LA SALLE

Death Claims Well Known Vessel Man After a Long Illness.

Capt. Fred N. LaSalle died this morning at his residence in Chester terrace after a long and severe illness. For months a constitution of great strength has battled against the ravages of relentless and hopeless disease and death has finally removed one of the finest men, a man beloved by all his friends and their families, and a great friend of the city.

Leaving a magnificent heritage, he was a plain man, simple and unaffected in his manner, but a great friend of the city. He was a man of great physique, sheltered one of the warmest hearts that ever beat in a human breast. He was a man of great physique, sheltered one of the warmest hearts that ever beat in a human breast.

GEORGE FRED WILLIAMS.

George F. Williams, There is no man more equal to the task than Hon. Charles A. Towne, who is the intellectual and moral center of the party, and that gentleman is the Hon. C. A. Towne. (Great cheering.)

Minneapolis, when called, seconded the nomination of Mr. Towne. His speech, which was seconded by the nomination of Mr. Towne, was received with much applause from the galleries.

Money of Mississippi rose when his state was called and made his way to the platform. Although he spoke clearly and distinctly, the crowd, in its impatience, interrupted him with its calls of "louder," "louder," "louder."

The audience received Governor Stearns of Missouri with great enthusiasm, waving to his feet and cheering and raising flags, while the band played "Dixie."

PREPARE FOR WORST

Shanghai's Ominous Reply to Inquiries as to Situation in Peking.

CAPITAL AN INFERNO

Consistent Reports of the Horrors Enacted in the Imperial City.

London, July 6.—In response to inquiries cabled to Shanghai in regard to the situation at Peking, the following cablegram has been received from an authoritative quarter:

"Shanghai, Thursday, July 5. 'Prepare to face the worst.'"

London, July 6.—There is a mass of wild rumor from the far East. Though contradictory on most points, it continues unanimous as to the consummation of the tragedy at Peking.

To consistent reports of the massacre of the whites are now added the additional horrors that savage soldiery butchered at the capital 5000 natives, Roman Catholic converts. This comes in a Shanghai dispatch of July 5, which only adds to the reports given by respectable Chinese who have arrived from Chian Fu and who describe Peking as an inferno, the streets literally running with blood.

They confirm numerous stories of executions and untold tortures of the isolated foreigners. Some European soldiers were captured by a mob. Yung Lu, who advocated moderation, was killed by Tuan Fang Yi and Tang Fu Shan, who issued fresh edicts ordering the merciless extermination of all foreigners in the empire.

NEWS OF MISSIONARIES.
Several Have Not Escaped From Pao Ting Fu.

New York, July 6.—By Halsey, of the Presbyterian board here, received a cable from Che Poo saying that Dr. Cortland Van Rensselaer Hodges and his wife, Dr. G. Mardley Taylor and his wife, Dr. J. A. Miller and Mrs. Miller have not made their escape. The Rev. J. A. Miller has escaped from Pao Ting Fu and is now at Tien Tsin. The Rev. J. A. Miller and Mrs. Miller have escaped and gone to Corea. The cablegram indicates that the Peking missionaries are still at Peking. The first part of the message is important in that it shows that all the missionaries, some sixty in number, in the Shang Tung district are safe.

BELIEVE HER KILLED.
Fate of Miss Smith, a Missionary at Peking.

New York, July 6.—According to Mr. Tyson, secretary of Cyrus Field Judson, of this city, Miss Mary Condit Smith, a sister-in-law of Mr. Judson, has been killed in the Peking massacre.

Mr. Tyson said that Mr. Judson had made frequent inquiries at the state department whether or not Miss Smith was safe and had received a reply to the effect that there was no hope for her safety, and that he believed that all foreigners had been massacred, their heads cut off, stuck on the poles and paraded through the streets.

Miss Smith had for some time been a guest of Minister Conger, and had been traveling with her sister, the wife of Lieut. Key, now stationed at Tokio, Japan.

OUTBREAK OF THE RIOTS.
Stories of Scenes in Peking and Tien Tsin.

Victoria, B. C., July 6.—Correspondents of Japanese papers writing from Peking as late as June 13 tell of the daily arrival there of refugees from all the surrounding country. Many of the incoming parties had been wounded. Some report having left others dead behind them.

The Boxer hosts at Peking practically commenced their work of destruction at the capital, according to the correspondents, on June 11, when a mob burned the summer houses of the ministers, the race course and foreign cemetery at Shih-shan. On the following day thousands gathered outside the city with banners. Then, owing to the terror that reigned among the refugees and the foreigners, the missionaries ordered all to gather in the British and American legations, which had been barricaded. Guns were mounted and other preparations made for a siege. The custom house and cathedral also had been bombarded, but were saved.

On the 13th the mob attacked the eastern part of the city during the night and burned it. This part included the cathedral, the customs house, several missions and foreign houses. Hundreds of native converts were massacred. Some were hacked to death with swords and others driven into the burning houses and cremated.

At Tien Tsin the Boxers had destroyed two of the mission buildings and had massacred a number of native Christians. On June 13 last a band 500 strong entered the city by the iron bridge over the Pei Ho and set fire to the Roman Catholic mission and two houses used as schools by the missionaries. As the native Christians ran out they were put to the sword by the Boxers or pushed back into the fire. It was not known how many had been killed.

There was greater terror lest the Boxers should fire the city.

MISSIONARIES SAFE.
Nashville, Tenn., July 6.—A cablegram received today from the foreign missionary of the Southern Presbyterian church, Rev. H. M. Woods, announces that all the missionaries of that church are safe at Shanghai.

OIL PLANT FIRE.
The Standard Oil Works at Bayonne Still Burning.

New York, July 6.—The fire at the Standard Oil works at Constable Hook, Bayonne, N. J., was still burning this morning. The fire department of Bayonne and the fire-fighting force of the Standard Oil company kept up their struggle against the flames during the night, but their efforts, as far as saving burning property, was of little avail. About 25 this morning another tank exploded with a loud roar, and the naphtha which it contained spread in all directions.

None of the injured was in a serious condition today. Many of the fire fighters who had worked continuously for twenty-four hours were compelled to quit today from exhaustion and exposure to the fierce heat.

The Standard Oil company is bringing new recruits from various points to add to the fire brigade, with a hope of saving the main portion of the old works. Should these go up in flames the company's plant at Bayonne will be wiped out of existence, and the loss would be several million dollars greater than at present.

A little life may be sacrificed to an hour's delay. Cholera, infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea come suddenly. Only safe plan is to have Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry always on hand.

ARE KICKING

County Officers Report Much Dissatisfaction Over City's Personal Assessment.

A GENERAL INCREASE

One Would Seem to Have Been Made Judging From the Kicks.

County officers are being besieged with objections to the personal property assessments levied by the city officers, and while they have nothing to do with it, they are being compelled to hear the kicks. A great many people imagine that as the county collects the taxes it has a hand in every one of them. From the number of complaints that have been registered with the county officers, it would seem that everybody in the city has been rated more or less. As they have nothing to do with the assessments, those who are being complained against are not to be blamed for that. It is a square deal, and they would be very grateful if the proper authorities would relieve them of some of the burden of complaint.

"As far as I can see," said one county employee, "there is a good deal of justice in most of the complaints. Of course it is understood that very few people pay personal property taxes on the real value of their belongings. In fact, the personal property tax is a good deal of a farce, but as a rule everybody comes within the same amount of property, so the measure things equalize themselves. But the fellow with very little property does not have the show that the man does in proportion to the little fellow's assessment. A man whose personal property cost him $400 probably returns it at $100, while a man whose property cost him $500 returns it at $150. When a horizontal raise is made, such as seems to have been done by the city this year, the disproportion between these two assessments is increased to the disadvantage of the man with the small property. This is one of the injustices of the personal property tax, and those who are complaining about it are not men who cannot afford to pay much taxes."

TRAINING DOGS

The Methods Pursued in the Education of Trick Animals.

Turning Somersaults is the Hardest of the Feats To Teach.

Everyone knows how to make a dog jump over a cane. The feat is not a difficult one, and it is easy to find an animal that will perform it with willingness. Should the cane prove otherwise, the animal—long used in training—must be employed for the spiked training collar. It is entirely useless. For making an animal jump over a bar, the inclination for receiving, possessed to a high degree by certain dogs, may be made to assist by throwing a stick over the obstacle. After the dog has been trained to jump without hesitation and return to its place, he may be regarded as well under control and can be taken out for ordinary work. He may be at once set to jumping, and will soon learn to perform this trick from right to left, that is to say, in the direction he is going, and he will be able to do it so quickly in the other direction that he will be able to perform it in either direction. A standing jump is a feat that can be performed by almost any dog, but it is not a feat that is of much use in training. A dog that is able to perform this feat is a dog that is well under control, and he may be regarded as a dog that is well under control. A dog that is able to perform this feat is a dog that is well under control, and he may be regarded as a dog that is well under control.

HIGH TO VICTORY

Combine at Last Moment Wrests the Prize From Towne.

A Magnificent Tribute Was Rendered Him In Democratic Convention.

From a Staff Correspondent.
Kansas City, July 7.-(Special to The Herald.)--The nomination of Stevenson was a genuine surprise to the Towne forces. Up to the opening of the convention they were confident of victory, but at the last moment the opposition combined on the former vice president, and when the nominating speeches were half finished it was evident that nothing could stem the tide that was setting against Stevenson.

The old line Democrats in the South refused to support Towne, believing that he was not a Democrat except to a limited extent, and when Hill refused absolutely to be a candidate, they went to the Stevenson banner with a rush. All the enemies of Bryan within the party were found lined up for Stevenson, and yet, despite the showing on the ballot, the Towne men made an excellent impression in the convention. George F. Williams, of Massachusetts, made an eloquent speech nominating Towne, and he aroused enthusiasm.

It was significant that the galleries were for Towne as against Stevenson, and

No Minnesotan could fail to be proud of the demonstration that took place when the name of the mentioned Towne's name.

The first applause came when Towne spoke of Towne as a man who embodies the best characteristics of American manhood. Then when he named Towne the Minnesota delegation rose to its feet, waving flags in frantic fashion. The galleries joined in the applause with fervor, but there was less enthusiasm among the men on the floor who had the votes.

For fifteen minutes the cheers and waving of flags continued, the band played the "National Anthem," and judging from the sentiment of the galleries one would have thought Towne would win hands down.

Mrs. Daniel G. Cash, in the southwest corner of the first gallery, climbed upon a chair, holding in her left hand a colored lithograph of Bryan and Towne, while with her right hand she waved a handkerchief vigorously. Congressman Shafroth of Colorado, a zealous supporter of Towne's candidacy, climbed into the gallery in an effort to get Mrs. Cash forward to the platform, but she declined to come.

By degrees the enthusiasm spread throughout the delegations, and in a short time men were up in the states of Washington, Wyoming, Montana and South Dakota, but their number was less than that which had risen to the name of Stevenson.

Just as the cheering was ending, a large banner with pictures of Bryan and Towne was brought into the delegates' section and raised aloft. This redoubled the enthusiasm and decided the combined opposition to put Hill in nomination, although he protested vigorously. But Hill soon put an end to the movement by declining absolutely and recommending Stevenson, and the Hill men went over to Stevenson.

At the Silver Republican convention, which followed the adjournment of the Democratic convention, Towne said he could not accept a nomination from the Silver Republicans, because he believed it their duty to support the Democratic nominee this year. For this reason no nomination for vice president was made by the convention.

Someone asked Mr. Towne if he would accept the Populist nomination, but he declined to answer, saying it was the Silver Republican convention he was advising, and that other questions would be decided later. This was Towne's decision reached after a talk over the long-distance telephone with Bryan, and in was in opposition to the counsel of the Silver Republican leaders who expressed their views after Stevenson's nomination.

While the result of the Democratic convention is disappointing to most of the Minnesota men here, yet they feel that the ticket will be strong in the East and also in the Middle West, where Stevenson is held in high esteem.

There is no denying the fact that it pleased many of the Democrats who opposed their party ticket four years ago.

LEGATIONS HOLD OUT

Goodnow Reports the Legations' Standing and Boxers' Attack Slight.

PUNISH THE CHINESE

Two Thousand of Their Troops Killed and Many Boxer Leaders.

Washington, July 7.--An important dispatch to the state department from Consul General Goodnow this morning has relieved hope in a measure that the legations, or that at least some of them, are still alive in Peking. Having survived at least two weeks longer than was supposed to be possible, and certainly being alive five days ago, the unfortunate ministers and their staffs and guards may still be holding out. In fact, if the only active enemy they have now to face is starvation, as Consul General Goodnow indicates, the officials believe there is substantial ground for the hope that they may hold out, and that the horrible stories of the last few days from Shanghai of nameless crimes and massacres committed upon the legations are at least premature.

One certain effect of Consul General Goodnow's dispatch will be to cause the officials here, and without doubt the European governments, to redouble their exertions to push forward a force to Peking.

The main hope for speedy action is still in Japan. According to the Japanese legation here, which has late advices from Tokyo, 25,000 Japanese soldiers are now on Chinese soil. If this is right and true, then the Japanese government has accomplished more than was expected, and the officials here see no reason why the advance on Peking should not begin immediately.

It is said that Japan is not expected to make this campaign single handed. The international forces at Taku and Tien Tsin will co-operate to the utmost to meet this heretofore. She has no military losses in China, and consequently is, perhaps, less interested selfishly than any of the powers in the terrible happenings in Shanghai and Peking. It is conjectured that this question of compensation is after all what has caused the apparent delay in the resumption of the campaign against Peking. The preparations are very extensive, and the military operations will progress rapidly.

If the powers have agreed upon the form Japan's indemnity is to assume this morning from Consul General Goodnow, however, is that there will be a money indemnity, the belief being based on the fact that such a form of indemnity was so far suggested that would be the least liable to arouse international jealousies.

London, July 7.--A cable dispatch dated Thursday, July 5, p. m., received today at the London office of the inspector of Chinese maritime customs, from Shanghai, says:

"Courier left Peking July 3, when two legations were holding out against troops and Boxers. Troops had lost 2000 men and Boxers many leaders."

Washington, July 7.--A cablegram was received at the state department this morning from Consul General Goodnow, at Shanghai, dated July 5, saying that the legations were standing on July 4, and that the recent attack of the Boxers had been slight. They seemed disposed to adopt starvation.

STORY FROM SHANGHAI.

Sends a "Confirmation" of the Peking Massacre Story.

London, July 7.--The massacre of the women and children and the European guards after eighteen days of hopeless resistance is confirmed, says a dispatch from Shanghai dated July 6 and received in London today.

"When the ammunition and food were exhausted, the Chinese fiends closed in upon the legations and butchered all those who remained alive. Afterwards they set fire to the legation buildings, in which the remains of the victims were consumed in one horrible holocaust."

The dispatch does not state the source from which the news of this confirmation is received here, but it is thought that this is indicated by another Shanghai dispatch, which states that the late, or officer in charge of the legations at Shanghai, now admits that no legation exists in Peking. They are said to have been exterminated, and it is added that no foreigners have been left alive.

Reports of the atrocities committed by Prince Tuan upon the Chinese are appalling. He had 400 leading Chinese butchered, it is said, for merely daring to petition him to curb the orate of blood and restrain his followers.

The dispatch concludes with the statement that ex-Viceroy Chi Wang Wen Chao has been killed by the Boxers. Reports from natives who left Peking respect to the United States, but they are to a large extent, merely variations of the stories already published.

A dispatch from Taku says that the last message from Edwin H. Conger, the United States minister at Peking, brought there by runners, reads as follows: "We're besieged. The provisions are becoming exhausted and the situation is desperate. The relief force should advance and give us notice by signal." Runners also confirm the report of the burning of the native city of Peking. In London it is hardly doubted that the worst has happened, though the friends of those who were besieged at Peking cling to the last slender hope that Sir Robert Hart, the inspector general of customs, who was thoroughly trusted by the Chinese, managed by the promise of bribes to induce the Boxer leaders to protect the women and children from the violence of the mobs.

He was met by several friends, among them former Governor Francis, who escorted him to the Merchants' exchange. Hill received a demonstrative welcome. He replied in a brief speech, in the course of which he said:

"I have returned from a convention where there were some distinguished men, and I may say, probably, that I was some one who were extinguished. I may be pardoned for saying that possibly I belong to the latter class."

He recalled the fact that in this hall Samuel J. Tilden was nominated in 1876. At the conclusion of his remarks, Hill was heartily cheered, the ex-senator spent the time before the train left in shaking hands with those who pressed around him. He left the city at noon for New York.

REPORT ON WATERWAY

Waterways Commission Reports on Canals From Lakes to Seaboard.

ALL IN THE STATES

The Board In Favor of a Route Entirely In This Country.

Washington, July 7.—The report of the deep waterways commission, composed of Maj. Charles W. Raymond, Alfred Noble and George W. Wisner, was made public by the secretary of the department yesterday. This board was appointed in 1897 to investigate and report on available routes for deep-water communication between the great lakes and the Atlantic seaboard. The report is very voluminous and treats exhaustively of all routes suggested. Its conclusions are as follows:

"It appears from the investigations of the board that the most favorable route for a thirty-foot waterway from the lakes to the sea is from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario via the Erie and Oswego rivers, and from Lake Ontario to the Hudson river via Oswego and the Mohawk valley; and that the same route is practically as favorable as any for a twenty-one-foot waterway.

"This route is entirely in our own country and has a longer season of navigation than more northerly lines. The problem of its defense is, of course, much simpler than it would be, were part of it in a foreign country, and it is available as a line of communication for ships of war.

"In the following comparison of twenty-one-foot and thirty-foot waterways, this route will alone be considered. The cost of construction: The estimated cost of a twenty-one-foot waterway on a low level plan is $208,528,000; estimated cost of a thirty-foot waterway is $317,285,000, to which should be added about $30,000,000 for necessary deepening of harbors at Duluth and Chicago, making the total cost $347,285,000. The annual cost of maintenance and operation is estimated at $2,390,000 for a twenty-one-foot waterway and $2,390,000 for a thirty-foot waterway.

"The maximum annual traffic capacity of a twenty-one-foot waterway, when single lift locks are duplicated, is estimated at 25,000,000 net tons; and that of a thirty-foot waterway at 25,000,000 net tons, traffic on smaller waterways being greater than that of larger ones to difference in time expended in lockage. It should, however, be remarked that with smaller locks proportionately increased for the most economical type of carrier, the traffic capacity of a larger waterway would be somewhat increased.

"The average speed on a twenty-one-foot waterway is 10.67 miles per hour; on a thirty-foot waterway it is 10 miles per hour.

"In a thirty-foot waterway navigation would be freer, and for smaller vessels a little more rapid than in a twenty-one-foot waterway, and there would be less danger of delay from accidents and crowding. The time required for a vessel No. 1 to make a single trip from Duluth to New York on a thirty-foot waterway would be about two hours longer. (A vessel No. 1 is of nineteen-foot draft).

"As both waterways furnish low rates for large traffic volumes, there seems to be little choice between them in respect to their influence on railway rates. "Route for ships of war.—In the very improbable event of war with Great Britain, every large ship of war possessed by this country would be required on the Great Lakes. Such vessels would be unnecessary on the lakes, the greatest depth of the Canadian canals is only four feet. For purposes of naval defense, a twenty-one-foot waterway appears to offer ample facilities.

"Ship building.—The thirty-foot waterway would enable the ship builders of the lakes to construct vessels of the largest size both for commercial and naval purposes. With a twenty-one-foot waterway, the construction of vessels of not too great dimensions to pass the locks. If the width of locks were made greater than is necessary, a type of carrier ships of larger size would be limited from lake shipyards to the sea board when light. This would increase the cost of the canal and diminish its traffic capacity.

"Conclusion.—As a result of this investigation it appears that a twenty-one-foot waterway promises to give greater return of value relatively to its cost than the thirty-foot waterway. The main advantages of a thirty-foot waterway are that it would furnish the lowest cost of a canal, and permit the construction of the largest sea-going vessels on the lakes.

"The board is of the opinion that works can be established for regulating the level of Lake Erie, which will be of great value to navigation, not only in Lake Erie, but also in the upper lakes and connecting waterways, and will be of no injury to the lower waterways of the lake system. The effect would be to diminish the slopes of Detroit and St. Clair rivers and to redistribute the stage about three feet in Lake Erie, two feet in Lake St. Clair and one foot in Lake Huron. Obviously, this would be a great benefit to navigation."

looking at things away off to notice more important things near by. One-sixth of all deaths are from consumption. Only the man goes along with his eyes bulging to watch cholera and yellow fever. He disdains to cure the cold or check the little cough, and consumption trips him up.

Don't neglect little ailments. Keep the system up to the point of effectual resistance against disease. This is best done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the stomach, increases the action of the organs of digestion and nutrition, excepts the cancer of the stomach, purifies the blood, increases the vital energy, and so enables the body to resist and throw off disease. Even when there is but a slight weakness, hectic cough, bleeding at the lungs and other alarming symptoms, "Golden Medical Discovery" can be counted on to help every time and to heal 95 times out of every hundred.

Sick people can consult Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., by letter, without fee or charge. Every letter is read in private, and treated as a sacred confidence. All replies are sent in plain envelopes. "Last spring I was taken with severe pains in my chest, and was so weak I could hardly walk about the house," says Mrs. G. E. Before I had taken the first bottle I was very much better; I took five bottles of it and have not yet had any return of the trouble."

GOVERNMENT WINS.

Judgment For Logs Cut on Winnegoshish Reservation.

St. Paul, July 7.—Judge Amidon has directed a verdict for the plaintiff, the United States, against the Pine River Logging and Improvement company, John S. Pillsbury, C. A. Smith, Joel B. Bassett and William L. Bassett. The amount of the verdict is the sum of $100,000, to be paid by the logging company in a suit to recover the value of logs unlawfully cut on the Winnegoshish Indian reservation in the year 1892.

The defendants are prominent Minneapolis lumbermen, widely known throughout the country, and they were charged with the logging with a willful disregard of their contract to cut dead-and-dying timber on the reservation and with cutting a large quantity of live timber.

WILLIAM TO MCKINLEY.

German Emperor Thanks the President For His Sympathy.

Canton, Ohio, July 7.—The following cablegram was received by Mr. McKinley yesterday:

ST. LOUIS POLICE BLAMED.

Grand Jury Criticizes Them For Action During Strike.

St. Louis, Mo., July 7.—The grand jury, in their final report yesterday, faulted much of the responsibility for the disturbance which marked the recent street railway strike on the police. The report denounces the police law passed by the last legislature, and says that it makes it possible for the police of the land to step in and assume full authority. The jurors declare that the law should make it compulsory for the mayor to be a member of the board and to attend the meetings.

Police officials and patrolmen are criticized for failure to do their duty, and the jury says that many of the acts of lawlessness were committed with the aid and assistance of the police. The sheriff's posse was complimented for its efficient service.

MAHER BESTS O'DONNELL.

Peter Found Stove to Be an Easy Proposition.

New York, July 7.—Peter Maher knocked out Steve O'Donnell in the first round of what was to have been a 25-round bout at the Broadway Athletic club last night. The bout lasted only one minute and 48 seconds. In that time, O'Donnell was knocked down three times. Maher, at the close of the fight, was dazed and with a rap on the jaw. O'Donnell clinched. After breaking, Maher rushed and sent his man down like a log. He scrambled to his feet and as he put up his hands he got swung on the neck and fell on his back. He arose slowly and Maher rushed at him and smacked him with a right to the jaw. O'Donnell staggered and as he was falling Maher landed again. The referee stopped further proceedings and awarded the fight to Maher.

BRITONS WILL PLAY

Pursue Their Sports Despite the War Clouds In the Skies.

SOME INSIDE GOSSIP

Alleged Reason For Roberts' Declining to Furnish Troops For China.

London, July 7.—(Copyrighted 1900, by the Associated Press.)—Truly, Great Britain is the land of sport. British soldiers are fighting a barbarous enemy in the far East. In a dramatic endeavor to save the lives of some of their fellow countrymen and maintain their country's prestige, British soldiers are engaged in similar trials in Ashanti, where British officers, women and children are in danger of being massacred. British soldiers are still grappling with the stupendous military and civil difficulties that must be overcome before South Africa is pacified, and the cricket, running, rowing, polo, tennis and athletic contests of all descriptions hold unrelentingly undiminished sway over public attention. In the time that Henry week, as a social occasion has been more than usually attended for years past and the gorgeous summer solstice did not blossom as usual on the banks of the Thames. But, while so-called despatched, there was no diminution of the quality of the rowing or the cricket, and the sportsmen were not for their social recreations.

The war and the weather were chiefly responsible for society's absence from the great summer festival. The beginning of the week was so wretchedly wet and cold that many persons cancelled their projected trips. The Cambridge cricket match did not suffer from these causes. It attracted enthusiasts in as large numbers as ever, and for many days the English cricketers and their sister, mother and other relatives, and the international athletes and polo players, looked forward to with keen interest. The international athletes and polo players, looked forward to with keen interest.

That with such large international contingents at present, the United States, an annual convention of the largest cricket club in the world, the United States, is meeting within the shadow of Westminister, the headquarters of the world's best players, who on their way to Paris, pass through London, and who on their way to Paris, pass through London, and who on their way to Paris, pass through London.

ABSURDITIES

Some Old Laws That Outrage the Common Sense of Today.

Preposterous Provisions in the Codes of Many States and Nations.

Dozens of modern cities owe their architectural splendor to a rookery-devouring conflagration, and revolutions have often equally reckoned their horrors by the depuration of legal absurdities. The explosion of the Bourbons gave Bonaparte a chance to reform the laws of France, as he had reformed her military system, and the "Code Napoleon" is as rational, liberal and consistent as a philosophical treatise of Condorcet.

Russian law court whittles out an almost similar overhauling under the reign of Frederick the Great, whose reform passed was not handicapped by an almost similar overhauling under the reign of Frederick the Great, whose reform passed was not handicapped by an almost similar overhauling under the reign of Frederick the Great.

Married women in the United States have about as much freedom as in the Sultanate of Morocco. A Richmond (Va.) woman, who had married a man who was a "woman's rights" man, was told by her husband that she was to be a "woman's rights" man.

He is injured with his own consent, of course; but the same government that sanctions consent to a positive injury, thinks itself called upon to punish consent to a mere risk.

"Take their spurs off then," said an alderman with a tongue of his own, and snorting about the city. "Why, if you knew anything about the nature of a game cock, you would agree that he is so eager for a scrap that he prevents himself from being hurt by a single blow. He enjoys a fight as a first-class athlete would enjoy a wrestling match. Is he any the worse for having spectators?"

Spanish-American magistrates would gasp with surprise at the idea of punishing the patrons of a cocking main for cruelty to animals.

But the legal absurdities of our rank-and-file statutes are liberal itself compared with those of some European monarchs. The mist of the middle ages that slightly obscures our civil atmosphere is broad like a London fog over the soil of Old England. Within 20 miles of Bristol there are parishes where the collectors can fill the bed of an impetuous stream with a bed of an impetuous stream with a bed of an impetuous stream.

"Poor laws," i. e., arrangements for the support of idlers, compel hard-worked tradesmen to surrender as much as 25 per cent of their income to a law authorizing the seizure of the goods of their own families. In some Middlesex communities small shopkeepers were thus forced to live on the edge of bankruptcy.

men for long or a brief interview, as he pleases. That is precisely the amount and extent of state about his surroundings, and he is not to be disturbed from the hand of "the little man" and talk with him about the two subjects which engross him—the war against him and politics at such times. It is important that such a political judgment as they do in his mind, you have not remembered how politics affected him in his career as a general, how he prevented this war by a vastly smaller one in Kandahar, in many fields. Lord Roberts never smoked tobacco, and with drink he had little to do. He was a man of the two of the three elements suffices for him. He preaches temperance to his soldiers, and they all know that he shows no patience with those who men, he refrains from advocating the impossible—one form of which is total abstinence.

There has never been known to use an oath, and indeed there must be comparatively few men whose religion influences them so deeply as to parade its ploy, never forces it upon those around him. Yet on every Sunday since he joined his army, he has attended divine service. Not only so, but he has accompanied his staff, suggesting or ordering their presence, yet he is certain to attend the weekly service—an example to the army, which, of course, is not properly appreciated that it cannot help but be powerful. sympathy with the hero, sometimes stern, course which a general would follow. "He is the head of so large an army, must often have to follow. I have asked many of his friends how he can be both sorts of man at once—how he can be both a leader and a follower. They say he must war with one another. "He does possess them—that's all," is the best answer, then. I got; "I don't know, but he has the knack." "He is all things to all men in the best sense of the phrase," said one who knows him well. "He has the royal gift of rendering his own will the will of others, the quality of flawless tact; the superior, almost superhuman gift of justice. Good men like him because he is good; kindly men find a place for him in their nature. And men who are stern feel that he, too, is stern upon occasion."

he has ordered home a general, knowing that the other carried with it the disgrace of a man who means as well as his money. He has no passion, no ambition. His army will do anything for him; march longer, starve harder, go without tents, blankets and rum than any other army. He has a few hundred men for him than for any other man alive. And they will do all these things willingly and gladly, where other armies might have died and died there they would be sullessness. He can get more out of an army, from the Guards down to the roughest scouting force (as he did in the Middle East) than any other man. He has more men or German general could have exorted with iron discipline and adamantia authority. It was the so-called "London

It suffices the majority merely to sum up Lord Roberts with the phrase "Bobs," and to make no mistakes that his army will recognize. Whatever he orders or does is regarded as the reflection of superhuman inspiration. He is considered infallible to the extent. There may have been more than one Wellington at the head of Britain's armies, but there has never been a second of the previous Roberts—never in English history has there been such idolatry, or any such magnetic leader.

DULUTH'S SOCIETY

The last few days have followed out the lines of a prescribed summer week exceedingly. July had worn a gloomy countenance until yesterday. The faces of certain individuals, especially those of the young ladies, were doleful countenances on the day of celebration, which corresponded with the weather. It certainly was a pity that some of the heavenly beings did not command the clouds to restrain themselves and thoroughly explain to them that they must, under no consideration, dampen enthusiasm as well as new hats on this day of all the year, when everything should harmonize with one's feelings, instead of being obliged to train one's sentiments to fit circumstances, and try to quell disappointed feelings by reciting and remembering things like this:

Selfish we are, and ever will be,
And when the rain drops fall,
Put self aside and remember, please,
They make Mr. Somebody's garden grow.

But "nature waits for no man," and as countless pleasures have been spoiled and outdoor pleasures postponed. Sunday, in spite of the cold, rough weather, the exuberance of the plentiful. A few of them found, however, that their physical conditions were easily and agreeably affected by aquatic motion, and consequently were glad to get ashore. When the sun came, and the day of independence will be observed differently, rain, however, will be a world for us. Then the poor will be remembered, for could the flags of our nation speak, they would cry out against the money blown up every year, when charitable institutions and other philanthropic enterprises are in need of support.

Miss Statham and the family of H. H. Morris, who returned from Washington last week, speak in the highest terms of the cold, rough weather, the exuberance of the plentiful. ## BOWEL CATARRH OF SUMMER.

bowels and stomach, and quiet sleep.

I thank you for your kind service in my case. I might add that Peruna cured me so that I stay cured. That is an important thing.

In a later letter he says: "Peruna is a household necessity and I hope that every family will come to realize the fact. As to my health, it is as near perfect. I believe, as anyone's health can be at my age. I am well and feel the vigor and vitality of a man of 30 or 40 years, though I have just passed my 75th birthday."

"I am no adept at reading or writing, and as I am a fruit grower, I labor regularly and never feel fatigued. I owe this state of being, I sincerely believe, to the good effects, the alternative and restorative properties of Peruna and Mandlin-Peruna chiefly, of course."

I was in a deplorable condition, truly, when I began to take this great restorer, and I wonder and wonder at the change it wrought in my physical and mental condition.

Peruna is a heavenly gift to the race. Dr. Hartman is one of the chosen helpers and benefactors of the age and of suffering humanity. He has a free will offering of a book which treats in an instructive manner the diseases peculiar to the summer months.

If you would bear the insignia of fashion you must don a green veil. This season the summer girl is protecting her eyes and complexion from the insistent glare of the sun, and she has discovered that green is the only color for this purpose—not green of those dim and distant shades which are grayish and soft, nor of those tones of olive and bottle green which are dark and inconspicuous, but green that is vivid and sparkling, and bright enough to make the grass feel dingy and depleted.

These veils are worn simply as a supplement to the black net face veil which serves to hold the wayward tendrils of hair within bounds. The green veil is usually of chiffon or twisted silk, and is worn like a curtain falling over the brim of the hat and fluttering about the face. To be sure, its shading purposes are somewhat lessened by the fact that it is generally thrown back over the hat in a careless, picturesque way, but then it is so easily possible to slip it over the face some designers and couturiers make hold to prophesy that pink is to be the fashionable color for the street next season. The inclination to retain light colors through the cold weather is certainly growing each year, and this fact strengthens the whispered prophecies that pink is the coming color for both coats and gowns.

Dressy costumes constructed in stamped out pink cloth, which is mounted on linings of white, or other shades of pink and occasionally on black tulle, where a striking contrast is desired, are being shown now.

For jackets and coats the correct shade is deeper and more like the shade we once knew by the name of crushed strawberry. For names, however, has changed to something far more pathetic and romantic, and is now called "rose marmalade" or "dying rose."

A smart yachting suit for this season in a light tone of this new pink is effectively made with a sailor collar of white cloth and cuffs of the same, decorated with interesting bands of the pink whifford. The hands are outlined with a small silk cord of black; the skirt, long. The tie accompanies a stock and chemise of the same material, designed to fill in the V neck of the summer gown. The tie is passed once around the neck and tied in front in a smart bow, with long loops and ends extending far enough beyond the loops to show the flare of their pleatings.

Plain white book muslin is indeed becoming strictly the smart thing for the neck, and in some styles the tie of book muslin is passed beneath the turn down collar of the corsage and held in a large bow below the open space at the throat.

Various styles of collars and chemises, tucked and lace trimmed, are beginning to appear as the open neck gowns increase in favor and become more generally adopted. These pretty little attachments give a flexibility of style to the gown, and serve to make more gradual the change from the tall and disfigured neck arrangements which we have so long worn to the unadorned simplicity now introduced.

Many women whose necks are long and thin would utterly repudiate the low-necked frock but for these simple little chemises which reconcile them to the change. A great many of these are made of late embroidery and lace, beading, strung with narrow velvet ribbon, while some are of tucked and chimed mousselines or plain white tulle, decorated merely with fancy stitcheries. The little undersleeves which is usually seen in conjunction with these low cut necks should always be of the same material as the collar and chemise.

Black satin stocks are fashionable for fall costumes. They stand high on either side in front of the ears and have a tie of a contrasting color knotted at their base. The stock is generally faced with the same color as the tie, and this quite a chic touch is given to what would otherwise be a somewhat somber neck dressing.

Yellow ochre, or as it is more fashionably termed, "Jaune ver", is the new color for fancy lace collars and ties. It is a deep yellow, almost infusing upon orange, and is a great deal. It is adopted by those who desire to look decidedly smart, but it is a color that is seldom becoming either to blondes or brunettes.

Large turned back cuffs of muslin and lace insertion, matching the popular sailor collars, are considered very recherche, and they add a certain elegance to almost every costume. They are very deep, reaching half way to the elbow, and are edged by frills of lace

BEAUTIFUL SUMMER SUNSHADES.

NAVAL LESSON.

Story of an Interesting Naval Experiment Recently Tried By England.

The recent and extraordinary rapid destruction of the Bellesisle by the Majestic was an instructive experiment, and the detailed results are being eagerly awaited by people all over the world who are interested in the modern warship.

It went without saying, of course, that one of the most powerful battleships, armed with four 12-inch wire guns, twelve quick-firers and some forty smaller weapons, would knock to pieces an old monitor dating back to 1860. But what was not, perhaps, so clearly understood was the speed with which the operation could be accomplished. From first to last, in the eight and one-half minutes occupied in the test, the Majestic fired sixteen 12-inch and just under 200 6-inch shells.

One of the chief objects of the experiment was to test the danger of conflagration for if there is one thing more evident than another from the records of Lissa in 1866, of the Yalu in 1894 and of Santiago and Manilla in 1898—it is that ships with any wood on board will take fire when subjected to the action of shells. Admiral Sampson, on this subject, has given his emphatic opinion that "not a particle of wood should be permitted where it is possible to use steel."

Consequently, who commanded the Toroso, destroyed by fire at Santiago, has stated that in his case, as in the Bellesisle, the decks were wetted before action, and water kept running on them, and yet this did not save her. With regard to the Bellesisle, she was at first reported to have been sunk in two minutes from the opening of fire; the vessel was ablaze, and so badly ablaze that no efforts of the crew would suffice to get the flames under. This, however, was flatly denied by Sir George in the house, he said:

"The Bellesisle took fire at all, to the supreme surprise of all concerned. Spectators were misled into the suggestion of fire by seeing clouds of smoke arising through a steam pipe being cut, and by the shells as they burst into the water emitted clouds of smoke, again giving the impression of the ship being on fire. But she was not on fire; there was only a little smoke. The woodwork was shattered in all directions, but did not take fire. While the ship was being battered the fire pumps were unharmed, and continued to work flooding the deck."

In order that the Bellesisle might represent as accurately as possible a battleship in action—let us get a battleship partially surprised—her torpedo nets were not out, but her saluting nets were spread over the upper deck. In her tubes were two fully loaded torpedoes and about her guns were placed 150 dummy men.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the Majestic weighed anchor and steamed away to the southwest, says a London correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer. At 11 o'clock she reappeared on the horizon, and it was evident that she was coming into view. At about a mile's distance from the target the Majestic fired the first round from her 12-inch starboard barbette gun. The shell entered the Bellesisle by the stern, traversed the ship and emerged at the bows. Then the 12-inch guns of the Majestic, working with extraordinary rapidity, poured in their heavy shells, while the 6-inch guns and the 3-pounder military guns in the top railings an even hotter fire upon the Bellesisle. It was observed, however, that the boilers and machinery were still intact. During the nine and a quarter minutes that the action lasted the Bellesisle, which was towed to her mooring place in its good fighting trim as on the day when she was first commissioned, was tremendously hammered. Before the experiment was half over the Bellesisle had settled down by the head upon the sandbank. That, of course, she remained still visible, as there was only about a foot of water beneath her keel.

As soon as the Majestic had ceased firing a certain number of torpedo boats were drawn round the wreck. No artificial vessel was allowed to approach, and even the boats which carried the correspondents could not approach nearer than three-quarters of a mile. From a distant view it seemed that the vessel had been pounded into an unrecognizable mass, but it was ascertained on a preliminary examination that the citadel had been proof against shell. The citadel, the engine rooms and boilers had not been penetrated. It appears that the citadel armor, which is of iron and which is of ten or twelve-inch iron and which is therefore roughly equivalent to five or six inches of Harveyized steel, and four to five inches of Krupp steel, resisted all attack. This is not surprising, as at the Yalu the Chen Yuen's 12-inch and 14-inch armor kept out the huge Japanese 12-inch-half-

Three of the most novel and delightful suitable for summer days, its brim is fringed with pink straw, which is concealed beneath a fringe of pink aerograph. The crown is decorated with two great loops of the black net veil, which he sits on the hat, and give a coquettish lift to the hair, and give a coquettish lift to the hair, and give a coquettish lift to the hair.

The one in the center is one of those fluff undulating affairs so becoming and so soft several shaped frills of silk net bound in black velvet, these fall over an under silk net bound, while the shirred applied nose of rose color is made prominent by the hair, and give a coquettish lift to the hair, and give a coquettish lift to the hair.

whenever the sun becomes troublesome that reason excuses this inconsistency. The brown chiffon veil, which we have known for several seasons now, yields to the popularity of its lively rival and is quickly disappearing from view.

Indeed there is a strong leaning to the use of brilliant emerald this summer, and it is making itself felt in a number of directions, particularly in the lighter touches of the toilette, such as veils, girdles, feather pompons for hats, and jewelry.

Emerald and scarlet are the two strong colors that continue to contend against the delicate and quiet hues of the season, and both are greatly affected. The contrast between their flashiness and the soft pale tones that prevail serves to give them additional prominence and smartness.

In Paris the ringing note of contrast is sounded by a suspicion of orange here and there, but as yet scarlet and green serve as our more sturdy and gay colors.

Among the delicate tones pale blue enjoys a great popularity, but it has recently found a formidable rival in certain soft rose shades, which are so rapidly increasing in popularity that they promise to hold firm in the fall, and without decoration, is entirely in the pink whifford, having deep pleats to the knee which are to flare widely around the feet.

The hat that accompanies this costume was a black sailor, with no other trimming save a carefully knotted scarf. Turkish embroidery, among the varied colors of which pink was strongly in evidence—these Turkish scarves, by the way, are very stylish and popular, as are the lunchunda scarves, which first appeared upon the Lady Smith hat. The Lady Smith hat now divides the honors with sailors and broad alpines, which have borrowed her trimmings. All of these morning sunshades present the appearance of being hastily and temporarily adorned by a carefully folded and knotted scarf, the short ends of which fall over the brim at the back and flutter upon the hair.

The latest and smartest piece of neck-gearing which has just come over water to us is an entire departure from the fixed-up and fussed-up affairs which we have seen for a long time, and yet is nothing on the order of the severe linen collar, which is now held in great scorn and contumely. It is simply a strip of plain book muslin, with no more trimming at its ends than a hemmed pleatheels, took her too far. She disported her little feet in this graceless attire with brave unconcern; secure in the conviction that loss of beauty was more than atoned for in the wealth of comfort and ease she was enjoying; but having gone to such an extreme in adopting the sensible shoe, she shortly grew tired and began to yearn for the Cuban and military heels. Now she has verged into the Louis Quinze heel, and the soles of her boots are growing lighter while her toes are sharpening to a delicate point. Of course, for golf, mountain climbing and sports she still clings to the mannish shoe, though this is becoming so modified that it will soon be hard to recognize it as its former awkward self.

Another change of fashion is the fad for matching each costume with stockings and ties of the same color.

St. Vitus' Dance Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People

Mrs. Minnie Fiedler, of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, says:

"I was afflicted for years with St. Vitus' dance. The first symptoms of the disease began in 1889, when the nerves began twitching in my left hand. I consulted physicians of this city, but none of them ever did me a particle of good. After I had suffered for two and one half years, the disease continuing to grow worse, I heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"It was in 1891 that I was induced to try them, and I was surprised at my rapid improvement. I took only two boxes, and was entirely cured. It was hard to realize that I, who for over two years was scarcely able to walk, and who often found it almost impossible to talk, should be restored to perfect health and in full possession of all of my powers by two boxes of this wonderful remedy.

"I am happy to state that my health is still perfect and I have never had the slightest symptoms of a return of the disease, although it is eight years since I was cured."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood, and restore shattered nerves. They are an undiluted specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, scurvy, neuritis, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of a gripe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexion, all forms of weakness, either in male or female.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are never sold by the dozen or hundred, but always in packages. At all druggists, or direct from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. 50 cents per box, 6 boxes $2.50.

This simple yet elegant blouse of cream batiste, with its transparent yoke and trimming of real lace, is a very de lightful addition to the summer wardrobe. It may be worn upon almost any occasion, with equal appropriateness as its simple style and costly materials combine to make it suitable both for morning and afternoon wear. The picturesque hat worn with this blouse is extremely stylish and becoming, with its three white ostrich plumes and its poke-shaped brim which dips in a pretty point in front.

hush shells. The Bellesisle's armor on the water line, which is much thinner, was, however, pierced, and this led to her sinking. As the possibility of making hits on the water line has been questioned, the fact is of great importance.

The low value of such ships as the Bellesisle for military purposes is illustrated by the experiment. In the last official return it is shown that Great Britain has thirty-three ships as bad as, or worse than, the Bellesisle classed as efficient. If armed with modern guns they could at least hit back, but in their present state their type, short-range, smoke-powder weapons, would place them at the mercy of a modern cruiser, which could lie out of their reach and destroy them.

AN ORANGE LUNCHEON.

An orange-colored menu can be easily arranged. Of course, the dishes must be white. If there be on the edge the old-fashioned gilt band, so much the better. Salad and spinach, with their accessories of mayonnaise and hard yolks of eggs; rolled thin slices of bread and butter, tied with yellow braid ribbon; a delicate pudding, capped with meringue dotted with orange sections; small round or heart-shaped fancy cakes, covered with yellow icing, all carry out the color scheme, says an exchange. At the close orange baskets may be passed about. To make them, cut a narrow strip of the round to make a basket handle, and below scoop out all the contents of the orange, leaving only the shell. Fill the cavity with chopped fruit, such as bananas, seeded raisins, pineapples and canned cherries, all moistened with grape or orange juice. Tie a bit of narrow green or white ribbon to the handles of these ambrosial baskets, and their appearance will equal the taste of the contents, which is saying much. The entire luncheon can be made inexpensive and exceedingly pretty.
